A HIGH PRESSURE STEEL CYLINDER EXPLODES IN A BRICKYARD, KILLING TWO

Huge Mass of Metal Sails Away Over 500 Yards.

Causes Complete Destruction of Everything in Its Path.

Mistake of a Workman Was Cause of the Catastrophe.

Schenectady, N. Y., June 29.—A ten-ton steel cylinder loaded with brick of equal weight and filled with steam at a pressure of 120 pounds to the square inch at the plant of the Schenectady Sandstone Brick company was opened this morning without first reducing the steam pressure and as a result exploded. The cylinder head killed two men, wrecked a portion of the plant, twisted a steel water tower into scrap iron, wrecked a big water tank and windmill. The brick cylinder, five feet in diameter and forty feet long, went through the end of the building and a brick five feet thick, crossed the highway, hit a carload of coal and a telegraph pole a glancing blow, killed a track repairer and skidded up the railroad track to a point fully 500 yards from its original position. The dead are C. Williams, track repairer, and John Curtis, track repairer.

TO CORRECT THE ABUSES

Of Which Winegrowers Complain, is Object of Bill

Passed and Promulgated by the French Senate.

Paris, June 29.—The government today promulgated the wine fraud bill, which was passed by the senate last evening, and which is designed to correct a number of the abuses complained of by the discontented winegrowers of the south of France. The bill, it is hoped, will go a long way toward removing the feeling of discontent in the recently disturbed districts. The measure which has just become a law requires, among other things, that all growers make an annual declaration of the acreage, cultivation and total quantity of wine produced and in stock, and whether it is intended for sale or otherwise.

FINE SHOOTING BY SCHOOLBOYS

Their Work With Rifles at Creedmoor Highly Praised.

New York, June 29.—Schoolboys hobnobbed with officers of the National guard yesterday at Creedmoor Park and shot with a coolness and precision under the critical inspection of colonels, majors and captains that evoked favorable comment. The event of the day was the first of two days' shooting. The following commissions for postmasters were signed: Minnie M. Luce, Hope, N. D.; Herman Anderson, Phillips, Wis. The president signed the application of Medical Inspector Presley M. Rixey to be advanced to medical director, Dr. Rixey now holds the position of surgeon general of the navy.

"Mother Preston" of Minneapolis Strangled to Death.

Fell Out of Bed and Caught in the Bed Clothes.

Minneapolis, June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Mrs. Annie Preston, long known in police circles of the Twin Cities as "Mother Preston," met a tragic death in the Pacific hotel, at Third avenue north and Washington street, Minneapolis, last night. She fell out of bed, and is supposed to have caught her head and neck in the bed clothing, with the result that she strangled to death. It is believed her neck was broken in the fall. It is thought she was dreaming and rolled off the bed. A postmortem examination will be made today for the purpose of ascertaining the cause of her death.

ORCHARD PLAYING POKER AT TIME OF THE EXPLOSION

Second Witness Declares That He Was Eighteen Miles Away From the Sullivan Mill During Tragedy.

The Attorneys for Haywood Are Making Every Effort to Discredit the Stories Told by Orchard.

Boise, Idaho, June 29.—The trial proceedings in the Haywood case began with the introduction of Dominick Flynn of Mullen, Idaho, who testified that he was a merchant. Flynn declared that Harry Orchard on the 28th day of April, 1899, the day of the explosion at the Bunker Hill and Sullivan mill, was playing poker in his place. This was the second witness to testify that Orchard was playing poker in his store April 29. One of the men who played with Orchard was named Patrick McHale. Flynn said he had spoken to McHale about the matter since Orchard's arrest. McHale, who is a bartender in Mullen, followed Flynn on the stand. He said he played poker with Orchard in Flynn's cigar store the 29th of April, 1899, and had never seen the man since. On cross-examination McHale said he gambled a great deal. "It's your profession, isn't it?" asked Senator Borah. "No, sir, I'm a bartender." "How often do you gamble?" "Every time I get the chance." McHale said the poker party was made up of Forest Clark, now a retired mining man; Col. Moore, an electric light and water man; Dominick Flynn, Harry Orchard and himself. Dr. McGee was in the place during the day but did not play. The witness declared he was positive Orchard was not at Warden the day of the mill explosion. "Then," said Senator Borah, "Orchard had nothing to fear so far as being mixed up in that matter was concerned?" "No, sir." "And he had no reason to sacrifice his property and get out?" "No, sir." Mr. Larrow, on redirect examination, asked: "All the union men were arrested, weren't they?" "They arrested everybody in Mullen." "That's all." "Did they arrest you?" asked Senator Borah. "No." "Who did they arrest?" "Dr. Col. Moore, or Dr. McGee?" "No." "Who did they arrest?" "Well, they arrested every man in Mullen except the saloonkeepers." Frank Pugh, a member of the Western Federation of Miners from Wallace, Idaho, was in the "bull pen" in 1899, and was called to testify as to the conditions in the military prison. He said Jack Simpkins, accused of complicity in the Steinberg murder, was a fellow inmate.

ATTORNEY FOR DEFENSE APPEALS TO JURY'S LOVE FOR SANCTITY OF HOME

GARBAGE PROBLEM

In New York Fiercely Attacked by Board of Health.

Refuse in Some Places Completely Blocks the Streets.

New York, June 29.—Early today scores of carts manned by non-union men and volunteers from the health department, sailed forth to tackle the mounds of garbage and refuse that has accumulated in the streets since the strike of the city's drivers began five days ago. Conditions in some parts of the East side can be imagined when it is said that the accumulations have actually made streets impassable. The air is so fetid that residences have had to keep their windows closed, a condition that adds to the discomforts in the prevailing hot spell. Several doctors who have visited the districts where conditions are the worse, say that a great deal of sickness and many deaths must necessarily follow, as a consequence of this disastrous strike. The health department which has been called upon by the mayor in this emergency to prevent pestilence, is moving with vigor. Dr. Walter Benzel, who has been put in charge of the work with full power, personally directed the onslaught on the garbage heaps today. It is a curious fact that the people whose health and lives are at stake, are the strikers in an attempt to drive away workmen who had come to remove refuse. In view of this curious situation Dr. Benzel called for and is receiving ample police protection. "God help the man who interferes with my work," he said today. "I am going to have this mass of garbage removed in less than two days, the men working night and day until the work is accomplished."

Lawyer Barksdale Pleads in Behalf of Ex-Judge Loving.

Tells Jury to Be Guided by the Law of Hearts.

Not to Look on Suspicion of Insanity Raised.

Houston, Va., June 29.—At the opening of court today in the trial of former Judge Loving for murder, the arguments of the attorneys began yesterday afternoon were continued. When former State Senator W. P. Barksdale arose to speak for the defense every available seat in the courtroom was occupied. Miss Elizabeth Loving has not been in the courtroom since she left the witness stand. Mr. Barksdale said in part: "I know that there is a suspicion about the plea of insanity, but the court had directed you not to look at it with that view. "The evidence in this case is that the defendant was on a continuous drunk for eight years and his brain had been so impaired that it suddenly gave away under great stress. "No wonder the light of reason fled from his mind. We are not appealing to you on the 'unwritten law,' but the law that is written on your hearts and on the hearts of your forefathers. "The plea of Mr. Barksdale was based almost entirely on the preservation of the sanctity of the home. He was followed by Attorney Moore of the defense.

TRACKMEN ARE TO ORGANIZE

Two Hundred Thousand Italians Will Demand Better Wages.

New York, June 29.—Following the strike of 500 Italian trackmen on the New York Central railroad, a movement has been started to organize the 200,000 or more Italian railroad employees all over the United States and bring about a higher scale of wages. At the head of this movement is Michael Sylvester of Chicago, who is here managing the strike against the New York Central. Without a word to their employers, the 500 track men quit their jobs in the Grand Central yards last Sunday. The men want a new wage scale of 20 cents an hour for a day of ten hours. They have been receiving $1.60 a day. Efforts have been made by the railroad officials to obtain Italian strikebreakers to fill the places of the strikers, but without success. Strike Leader Sylvester has addressed many meetings of the New York Central employees. He says that the Italian trackmen throughout the country are ready for organization and that a national union will soon be formed, with branches in almost every city of prominence in the United States.

Northampton, Mass., June 29.—J. T. Carey, international president of the International Brotherhood of Paper Manufacturers announced to the convention here today that the following telegram had been forwarded to one of the attorneys of Moyer, Haywood and Pettibone: "The International Brotherhood of Paper Manufacturers, in convention assembled at Northampton, Mass., herewith extends heartiest sympathy with their brethren now on trial for their lives and most sincerely trust that their innocence will be proven. The convention has also voted to donate $100 towards paying the expenses of trial of their three brethren, Haywood, Moyer and Pettibone."

FIRE RAGES AT BISBEE

Fifty Houses in the Residence Section Already Destroyed.

Water is Scarce and the Whole City May Burn.

Bisbee, Ariz., June 29.—Fire that broke out here early today threatens to destroy Bisbee. Over fifty houses in the residence section have already been destroyed and the flames are not under control. The fire has not yet reached the business district. There is a high wind and the water supply is scant. Bisbee has about 20,000 inhabitants and is headquarters of the Phelps-Dodge and other large mining companies.

TO CROSS AFRICA IN AUTOMOBILE

Lieut. Graetz, of Prussia, to Start on Novel Trip.

Berlin, June 29.—Lieut. Graetz of the Prussian army will leave here soon to make the first effort to cross Africa in an automobile. He proposes to start from Dar-es-salaam on the east coast about Aug. 10, riding through German East Africa, British Central Africa, Rhodesia and German Southwest Africa to Swakopmund. He proposes to make the journey in not less than six weeks. He will drive a specially made forty-five-horsepower car with very heavy wheels and compartments for holding sufficient gasoline for 1,000 kilometers. He will also provide himself with a big ladder. Accompanying him will be a machinist, a cook and a negro servant. He will have an elaborate photographic outfit. The Kaiser is said to be much interested in the venture and has directed that a report of the trip be made to him.

FUTURE OF UTES IS PROVIDED FOR.

Washington, June 29.—The question of the future of the Ute Indians who left their reservation last winter and have been held by the military at Fort Meade, S. D., has been settled as far as the war department is concerned, according to Secretary Tatt. He found that the army officers had adjusted the matter for themselves by giving the Indians enough food supplies to last them to the end of the fiscal year; placing them on the Cheyenne river south reservation, and forming an Indian bureau for their care after that date.

SWEEP THROUGH A BIG DAM

Boy Carried 150 Feet and Thrown Out Into River.

St. Louis, June 29.—Driven by a pressure of 10,000 gallons of water, Joe Dewitt, a boy was swept from the basin of a swimming pool in Greenwood yesterday and carried 150 feet through a drain into the river Des Peres, and then cast upon the bank, bleeding and exhausted.

While a number of boys were in the pool a retaining wall at the deepest section suddenly collapsed. Dewitt was immediately under the wall, and seeing his danger, dived to the bottom. The breaking wall opened the drain and he was swept through. A number of other boys in the pool escaped injury.

RAILROAD NEWS

ARE AFTER GOOD TIME

Duluth Made Happy by Visit of G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. Members.

Drives, Banquet and Lake Trips on the Program.

Triple-distilled, quadruple-plated, undisguised and undiluted pleasure is abroad in Duluth today. The whole town is happy. Why shouldn't it be? No reason at all. The G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. club members, to the number of 150 or thereabouts, are here. That fact is enough to make any metropolitan center proudly preen its feathers and sing with delight.

The imposing array of capital letters, with periods promiscuously intermingled, stands for "Give as Much Brightness as You Can," and at the same time get a little in return. The jolly set of railroad men honoring the membership roll with their names are highly proficient in giving and receiving brightness. All they are here for is to have a good time, and nothing in the world can prevent them having it.

This is the third annual meeting of the club, which is pleased to recognize Duluth as its home and regular place of meeting. This morning eighty-six members registered at headquarters, located at the Spaulding, in parlor X, but a good many more will arrive this afternoon. The weather simply cannot be beaten, and all indications point to the best meeting in the club's history.

W. S. Chadwick, secretary and treasurer of the organization, and his father, was on hand with W. H. Northmore, president, and a large committee of other local railroaders and steamboat men to extend the glad hand of good fellowship to the incoming members. The expansive presence of Theodore Chadwick, official cheer dispenser, was also there to delight the eyes of incoming members. He fairly radiated good cheer and better spirits.

Practically every railroad line of the country is represented by members of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. who are in Duluth today. Chicago, Milwaukee and the Twin Cities representatives of big railroad lines, particularly the passenger departments, comprise a proportion of the outsiders in attendance. Smaller towns through Wisconsin and Minnesota also have contributed quite liberally to the attendance.

Shortly after 10 o'clock this morning the members and their wives climbed aboard trolleybuses provided for the purpose and were given a drive around the harbor. This afternoon at 1:30 o'clock, headed by the Third Regiment band, the club marched to the dock and boarded the steamship Gopher for the ride around the harbor. This evening at 6 o'clock there will be a banquet at the Spaulding, and following this such of those who are so inclined will board the Booth line Eastern for the trip to Isle Royale. The boat will return early Monday morning. All berths have been taken, and everything points to a rattling good time. The indications are for good weather tomorrow. Following is a partial list of the outsiders who are in the city to attend the meeting: William Leahy, F. D. Lyon, W. L. Wyand, W. J. Bowser, A. E. Malcom, Mrs. H. L. Wyand, Mrs. W. D. Lindsay, G. D. Morrison, F. H. Clark, Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Gray, F. M. Ruge, W. E. Witherspoon, R. C. Hase, J. E. Malone, T. Short, C. R. Phoenix, H. O'Sullivan, Miss M. E. Mackey, W. R. Butlerick, T. W. Lusk, L. Smith, W. B. Dixon, R. D. Rowland, W. H. Jensen, B. E. Nichols, C. J. Knappell, J. A. Simmons, Mrs. C. J. Knappell, B. Creelman, W. J. Gilker, Mrs. E. P. Paroh, E. Hinckley, Mr. and Mrs. F. T. Lally, Mrs. E. Hinckley, Mabel E. Hinckley, C. E. Moore, J. E. Gelling, L. L. Gelling, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. McDonald, W. E. Handy, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Pond and daughter, Mrs. E. E. Handy.

All of those who are here did not register this morning, and the new arrivals this afternoon will add greatly to the list.

RUN TRAINS BY WINTER

J. C. Pond Talks of the Wisconsin Central Extension.

Cold Weather Will See the Passenger Service Installed.

"Passenger trains will be running to the Head of the Lakes early next winter over the Wisconsin Central," said James C. Pond of Milwaukee, general passenger agent of the road, who is in the city today to attend the meeting of the G. A. M. B. A. Y. C. "At first the service will consist of trains that cannot exactly be called speedy, because of the fact that by the time cold weather arrives the new track will not be thoroughly ballasted, and work of ballasting cannot be carried on very well while the ground is frozen.

"But as soon as the ground softens in the spring, work of putting the roadbed in first class shape will be taken up again, and when it is completed there will be no finer roadbed in the United States, and no road in the West will provide better passenger service than will the Wisconsin Central between Duluth and Chicago. The same may be said of the freight department. The finest equipment will be installed, and good time will be made. There is plenty of room for the Wisconsin Central in this territory, and at the present rate of growth of the region topped by our line, there will soon be more than enough business for all the roads in the territory."

MAY MEET IN DULUTH

Car Accounting Officials Favorably Impressed by Zenith City.

Visit May Result in International Convention Coming Here.

The ninety members of the American Association of Transportation and Car Accounting officials who were in the city yesterday afternoon and last evening, as a side trip from the convention at St. Paul, were so delighted with Duluth and its hospitality and attractions that there is an excellent prospect that the international convention will come here within the next two or three years.

The president and other officials of the organization were among the visitors yesterday, and when a cordial invitation was extended to them to meet in Duluth, instead of making this city merely a side issue, they seemed favorably impressed with the idea, and said they would be glad to have the convention held here. If arrangements can be made to that end, it is a common thing for outsiders to grow enthusiastic over the summer attractions of the Zenith City, but seldom does this enthusiasm reach such a pitch as with the car accountants and transportation officials yesterday.

The party passed off without a hitch, and before leaving last night the visitors drew up a resolution, to be placed on the official records, expressing the warm appreciation of the association as a whole for the many courtesies extended to its members while in Duluth, and thanking everybody who was in any way connected with the good time extended them. E. C. Blanchard, superintendent of the Northern Pacific, and C. L. Kennedy, commercial agent for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, composed the committee in charge of entertainment, were given particular mention.

The party consisted of men up of people from all parts of the North American continent, from the Atlantic to the Pacific, and several points in Canada. Many brought their wives. Surprise was freely expressed at the magnitude of the shipping interests, and at the industrial importance of Duluth. The beautiful drive along for unbounded expressions of delight, and the ride out at the Springs in the evening. The weather was ideal. The Third Regiment band furnished music for the boat ride.

The party left on a special train for St. Paul at 12 o'clock over the Northern Pacific. From St. Paul a special train provided by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway. Following the banquet at the Spaulding, the members of the association attended the meeting of the Northern Pacific club, and some of them gave short talks.

JAPANESE ARE AGAIN EXCITED

Think New Trouble at Frisco Based on Racial Prejudice.

Tokio, June 29.—Another serious report of anti-Japanese feeling in San Francisco has been received here to the effect that the city authorities have placed an embargo upon Japanese engaging in the business of intelligence agencies and have also refused them licenses of every kind, thus preventing them from engaging in any other business than that of a purely commercial character. Should the report be confirmed it will serve to confirm the belief here that the display of anti-Japanese feeling in that city is based on racial prejudice.

AUTOS COLLIDE IN A FAST RACE

Driver of One of the Racers is Seriously Hurt.

Philadelphia, June 29.—A twenty-four-hour automobile race which began at the Point Breeze track at 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon under the auspices of the Quaker City Motor club, was marred early today by a collision of two cars in which John Leckert's four-horse racer was seriously hurt.

Eleven cars started in the race and nine are still on the track. The race today settled down to a test of supremacy among three of the favorites. One of the heavy runners and a poor track the cars are establishing records. The leading automobile at the present time has covered 59 miles, which is forty-six miles ahead of the second car, which has covered 50 miles, and the third 43 miles.

RAILWAY CLUB.

Very Successful Meeting is Held at the Commercial Club.

The meeting of the Northern Railway club, last evening, at the Commercial club, was one of the most successful in its history. The fact that several members of the American Association of Transportation and Car Accounting Officials were on hand added interest to the occasion. Special trains were run from Proctor and M. Fenton, district freight and passenger agent of the Omaha, read a valuable paper on "Selling of Freight and Express in Time as Compared to Ten Years Ago." Mr. Fenton said that the present complexity of the railroad business made soliciting of business much more difficult now than formerly, and he stated that the only way for a railroad to get its proper share of business was to have a complete, separate and understanding between its different departments. Shippers demand that the railroads handle their goods with dispatch and care, and no district agent can secure business, said Mr. Fenton, unless his road handles it in a satisfactory manner.

There was a general discussion of the paper read at the May meeting by Charles Corder of the Duluth and Iron Range railroad, on the "Care and Management of Locomotives." W. E. Beesham, car accountant for the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railroad, with headquarters at Chicago, gave an interesting talk on the difficulties of tracing cars, and the best way in which a railroad could keep its own cars in its own tracks. He pointed out the enormous expense caused by "tramp" cars, and said that roads should always endeavor to send back cars belonging to foreign lines. He said that unless this was done, a national law might be passed compelling it, which might result in hardship to the railroads.

Mr. C. Drew of the Wisconsin Central made a few remarks, thanking the railroad men of Duluth for their hospitality to visiting railroad men, and Frank X. Mudd of Chicago also spoke along the same lines. There was a musical program, smoker and social session in connection with the business of the meeting.

LEAVE ON UNKNOWN TRIP.

Brother of Bridegroom Arranges All Details of Wedding Journey.

Bridgewater, Mass., June 29.—Starting on a wedding trip, but not knowing where they are going, is a novel experience that is being enjoyed by Mr. and Mrs. Lester J. Charnock, who were married yesterday.

Charnock's brother asked to be allowed to make arrangements for the wedding of the young couple, and was granted permission. Last evening, at the close of the reception at the home of the bride, the groom was handed an envelope by his brother, who told him to go to Fall River and then open it.

The envelope contained tickets for somewhere, and the necessary money to pay all expenses.

SKATING CAUSES CRIME.

Devotion to Roller Craze Forced Young Man to Become Forger.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 29.—Roller skating was charged in the criminal court by Senator C. H. Kline with being the cause of the downfall of Ralph R. Hess, who pleaded guilty to a number of charges of forgery preferred by H. C. Watkins.

The prisoner's counsel said his client up to four months ago had been a sober, industrious young man, and had held positions of trust and importance. When the roller skating craze came the young man became one of the most earnest devotees, and could be found in one of the numerous rinks in the city at all times. The result was the loss of his position and the use of his friend's name to secure money.

Judge Frazer suspended sentence on Hess, promises to secure work and abandon the skating rinks.

MINISTER WANTS BAND.

Pastor Reiterates Belief in Sensational Methods in Church Work.

Chicago, June 29.—"I would like to hire a band to play outside of my church this summer," said Rev. Johnston Myers, pastor of the Emmanuel Baptist congregation, last night at his home. "But I haven't the money. A good band, you know, costs $40 an evening, and that would mean several thousand dollars for a summer engagement."

"Do you believe absolutely in the theory you promulgated in your recent lecture at the University of Chicago about sensationalism in the ministry being a good thing?" was asked.

"I most emphatically do," responded the pastor, energetically. "The more unique the better. We must reach the people, get in contact with them, and any fair and honest means is justified."

TEST CASE SUBMITTED

Taxpayer Would Enjoin County Board of Commissioners.

Claims County Road Superintendent Law is Invalid.

The injunction case instituted by Anton Hjelm, a taxpayer in the town of Normanna, against the board of commissioners of St. Louis county, to restrain them from appointing a county superintendent of roads or appropriating money to compensate such an official, was heard by Judge Dibel this morning, being submitted by the attorneys of both sides.

Mr. Hjelm was represented by J. A. Keyes, and the county board by First Assistant County Attorney W. J. Stevenson.

The action is one of interest to the towns that have hitherto had to determine the constitutionality of an act of the last legislature providing for a county superintendent of roads and for his compensation. The law affects a number of counties having a certain population, and hence a great deal of interest being manifested in the outcome of the test case, both by county officials and by taxpayers.

Public sentiment seems to be divided over the desirability of a county superintendent of roads. The friends of the measure claim that there should be some such person to look after a systematic course of road building and be responsible for the spending of public road funds. Those opposed to the measure are mostly the taxpayers of the towns that have hitherto had the spending of their own road money. They object to the power of spending the road money being placed in the hands of a man appointed by the county board, also against the dismissal of the road inspectors.

The opponents of the law claim that it is unconstitutional and void.

"A FAIR FACE MAY PROVE A FOUL BARGAIN." MARRY A PLAIN GIRL IF SHE USES SAPOLIO

COL. BIRCHBY WANTS WIFE.

Any One the Girls Who Adopted Orphan Babe Will Do.

Des Moines, Ia., June 29.—"Tiny, bright-eyed Edna Haven, the 3-year-old baby who has been adopted by twelve society girls of Des Moines, has an opportunity to annex a father. Then she will have one father and twelve mothers, rather an unlikely combination, but one not distasteful to little Edna."

Col. Birchby's proposal has been "collected" by the editor of the Iowa Children's Home, where they found her an orphan.

"We might draw cuts to see which one will marry the colonel, just as we draw cuts to find which one should be the first mother to Edna. But I don't believe any of the girls has sufficient rights to Edna to take her all by herself and go away off to Los Angeles," said Miss Smyers.

Col. Birchby's proposal has been "collected" by the editor of the Iowa Children's Home, where they found her an orphan.

Col. Birchby's proposal has caused more excitement among the twelve mothers of Edna than any event since the young woman adopted the child at the Iowa Children's Home, where they found her an orphan.

"I know that I am in a position to give Baby Edna such a home as she should have, a splendid education, both at home and abroad, and fill her leisure moments with joy and gladness," writes Col. Birchby. "As for the young lady who, under these circumstances, is willing to become Mrs. Birchby, I have only to refer her to the mayor of Los Angeles or any other prominent citizen for my qualifications."

Col. Birchby's proposal has caused more excitement among the twelve mothers of Edna than any event since the young woman adopted the child at the Iowa Children's Home, where they found her an orphan.

GRADUATION AT ARMY COLLEGE

Thirty-eight Artillery and Infantry Men Finish at Leavenworth.

Fort Leavenworth, Kan., June 29.—The graduating exercises of the United States army college were held here today in Pope hall. Gen. J. Franklin Bell and Gen. ALLEGES FRAUD ON PART OF REALTY COMPANY

Joseph Sellwood Brings Suit to Recover for Stock Purchased.

Says It Was Sold to Him Under Misrepresentation.

Charging Robert Graham, assistant secretary and treasurer and the accredited agent of the Western Debiture & Realty company, with selling him fifty shares of preferred stock of the company, under gross misrepresentation and with fraudulent intent, Joseph Sellwood has instituted a suit in the district court to compel the company to pay back $1,000 that he has already paid for the stock, and cancel the stock for the remaining $4,000, due June 15 last.

The case is one that is likely to be of considerable local interest for the reason that the Western Debiture & Realty company is a corporation that has been dealing in Duluth real estate considerably during the past few months, and Edwin D. Field, a well known local real estate man, is vice president of the company. The suitmons and complaint in the action were served on Mr. Field.

Copper About Unchanged at Close of Short Session. Considerable Trading is Done in the Favorite Issues.

Copper stocks were about unchanged at the close of the market today. Trading was quite good for Saturday, when the Eastern markets close early, and quiet usually prevail.

North Butte opened at $8.50, advanced to $8.50 and closed at $8.50. Amalgamated opened at $8.50, advanced to $8.50 and closed at $8.50. Butte opened at $2.50, advanced to $2.50 and closed at $2.50.

The following paragraph comes from Boston: I learned upon good authority that North Butte interests have been surveyed for several days by the iconoclast, Michiganier, Third Spahn, Valley Queen and Marjorie Gable, who are probably by this time closed a deal for the purchase of the same.

Walker's copper letter in Saturday's Boston Commercial was all this week so far as actual business was concerned, but the period of inactivity that has existed for several months will soon be broken, quite likely within a few days, and sales of the metal in large quantities at a moderate price will probably be announced. The lake producers are still quoting nominal prices of 25c cents for lake copper. Electrolytic is quoted at prices being transacted at 25c cents per pound, but practically no business is being transacted at any of these prices.

CARNEGIE'S PORTER Is a pure and nourishing malt beverage, brewed and bottled at the West Duluth factory of prominent physicians, Carlson Bros., 35 West Superior street, Duluth. Distributors, Zenith phone, 621; Bell, 1000. Dancing at White City. Wednesday and Saturday evenings.

Graham solicited a stock subscription of him and that plaintiff, depending on and believing certain assertions of Graham, bought fifty shares of the preferred stock at par, paying $1,000 and giving his note due June 15, 1907, for $4,000.

Capt. Sellwood claims that Graham fraudulently represented that $50,000 worth of the stock had been sold in each of the Twin Cities at par, and that many thousand dollars' worth of preferred stock had been taken by parties in Minneapolis and St. Paul, who had asked permission to buy more but were refused as the company wanted to place the remainder of its stock in Duluth. It is alleged that Graham falsely represented that Paul H. Gottzian, prominent shoe manufacturer and subscriber for fifty shares of the preferred stock at par, as had Charles K. Sharwood of St. Paul, and Charles D. McLaren of St. Paul, were prominent in financial affairs. Mr. Sellwood claims that false representation was also made that Louis W. Hill had purchased a lot of the stock.

Graham is further charged with making false representation that the state public examiner had examined the affairs of the company and approved of its business methods; that the company had securities on deposit with the state treasurer to secure its liability on bonds to the amount of $50,000.

Capt. Sellwood says Graham falsely reported the company to have no stockholders' liability and that, when he received the stock he first learned that owners of preferred stock were not entitled to vote as stockholders nor had the right to elect directors. The stock carried with it no stockholder rights, rescinded his order for the stock, demanded a return of his money, and the execution of his note. He alleges that the company refused to do this, and he asks judgment against it for the return of his money and the $4,000 note be canceled.

THE STOCKS HOLD FIRM. BARTENDER FOUND DEAD. Pat Kane, Known as George Brown, Victim of Alcoholism. Died in Stable Under Saloon Where He Had Worked.

Pat Kane, formerly employed as bartender at "The Hub" saloon, at 222 Lake avenue south, on the viaduct, and better known to Duluthians as George Brown, a name he went by while here, was found dead about 10:30 this morning in the back stable underneath the saloon.

Pat Kane was notified and while the autopsy will not be held until this afternoon he says that it is practically certain that the man's death is due to chronic alcoholism.

He was seen at the barn about 2 o'clock last night when he came in and asked for a drink of water. This was not that any one saw of him until he was found this morning dead. Kane was about 40 years of age and unmarried, but he has relatives living in Southern Iowa, who have been notified. Up to March he tended bar in Wisconsin saloon, but he was taken sick at that time and went to St. Mary's hospital. He was released from there several weeks ago and has been doing nothing since. He has been on a prolonged spree for a week or two and was drunk last night.

THE POLICE COURT GRIST. West Duluthian Arrested For Third Time For Allowing Gambling. Tramps Pulled Out of Box Cars in Large Numbers.

Gamblers and tramps were the features of the unusually large grist which was registered on the police blotter this morning.

During the night two "quiet games" were pulled by the police, one on Lake avenue and one in West Duluth, and five hoboes were picked up sleeping in box cars in the Northern Pacific yards.

The proprietor of the West Duluth establishment, who was booked on the police blotter as "David Willis," has been found guilty of the offense twice before this year and paid heavy fines for permitting games to go on in his place. At one time a number of hoboes were found in the back room of his establishment and the court was unusually severe. Those who were playing last night were Officers Toewe and Peterson appeared on the scene gave their names as D. J. Allen, John Smith and Matt Wincham. They each forfeited $10 bail and the proprietor, "David Willis," forfeited $50 by non-appearance this morning.

The other raid was made on a saloon at 350 Lake avenue south. A man by the name of William Green, a Finlander in spite of the Anglied-looking nose, got three men of his own into a little game of cards. One of them "got stuck" and reported, and Capt. Resche, Detective Terry and Officer Milstead went down to investigate. A quart of poker chips and cards were evidence submitted this morning when the four Finlanders appeared. Judge Windom assessed the three "snuckers" $5 each, and the alleged shiner had to pay $20 and costs. They all produced the money.

Man's Body With a Bullet Hole Through the Head.

Chisholm, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a densely wooded and unfrequented spot, about a half a mile from the Shenango mine, the dead body of a man was found yesterday. A bullet hole through the head showed that death had resulted from violent causes. Whether the man was murdered, committed suicide or was accidentally killed by a stray bullet has not been established. The suicide theory is hardly tenable as no weapon was found near the body. If there was a murder there might have been powder stains on the body or indications of a struggle. These are wanting, although it is possible evidence of a struggle in the shape of foot prints and marks in the soft soil would have been eradicated by the recent rain. The man had evidently been dead a week or more. The clothing indicated the dead man was a laborer. There was nothing to indicate his identity. Unless some one is able to identify the dead man, the body will have to be consigned to a grave for the unknown. The authorities will spare no effort to clear the mystery up.

Coleraine, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—From an authoritative source it is quite reliably learned that the D. M. & N. railroad is planning to commence work very soon on a $30,000 depot to be built here. The details of the plans are not at hand, but it is said that the new building will be constructed of brick and stone and will cost something over $30,000. This will be a valuable addition to the western part of town, and a building that all may point to with pride. The sidewalk between Coleraine and Boggy has been completed and is highly appreciated by the pedestrians from both towns.

ENTERPRISING VIRGINIA METHODISTS PROMPTLY REPLACED BURNED CHURCH

NEW FIRST M. E. CHURCH AT VIRGINIA.

Virginia, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Virginia way of doing things is well illustrated in the completion and occupation of the new First Methodist Episcopal church, an illustration of which is reproduced herewith. The frame building which occupied the site was destroyed by fire on Oct. 4 last. Although this was a serious loss, the insurance amounting to only $1,000, the congregation was in no wise dismayed, and at once set about devising ways and means to erect a new building. In December a contract was let to James Sampson and work was started and carried on all through the severe winter weather. The building was fully completed and opening services held on Saturday and Sunday last. During these services over $1,500 was raised for the building fund. The church is 56 by 83 feet in size and the auditorium will seat 300 people. On the main floor, besides the auditorium, there are a choir room and a study for the pastor. In the basement are two commodious rooms used for Sunday school purposes and church supplies. There is also a kitchen furnished with a range and all necessary appliances, and a furnace room adjoins. The building cost something over $10,000, and with furnishings complete, cost $12,287. It was largely through the efforts of Rev. H. A. Logan, the pastor, and that of the following named: John Gill, James Trezona, Joseph Roskilly, John Slapp, H. J. Eaton and James Myers, Sr. The building committee consisted of Joseph Roskilly, James Trezona, James Polglase, Frank Bonds and H. A. Logan. The board of trustees is made up of the following named: John Gill, James Trezona, Joseph Roskilly, John Slapp, H. J. Eaton and James Myers, Sr. On Saturday evening, a banquet was held in the basement of the church, which was attended by a large number of Virginians, and the splendid collation provided by the ladies had been served, toasts were responded to by Messrs. M. E. Fanning, J. L. Kimball, O. H. Griggs, Rev. R. J. Taylor and Dr. Robert Forbes. Dr. E. C. Clemans acted as toastmaster. At the services Sunday, the auditorium was filled both morning and evening. In the morning, the sermon was delivered by Rev. Robert Forbes, and in the evening Presiding Elder E. C. Clemans preached. There was special music of excellent character provided for the occasion by Messrs. Bessie and Margaret Murphy. Messrs. Frank Skinner, D. Murphy and Kenneth Hare. The following ministers participated in the services: Rev. Robert Forbes, first assistant secretary board of home missions and church extension; Rev. E. C. Clemans, presiding elder; Rev. R. J. Taylor, Eveleth; Rev. Henry A. Logan, pastor. The First Methodist Episcopal church of Virginia now has ninety members, the membership having been largely increased during Rev. Logan's pastorate. The ladies' aid society, of which Mrs. J. L. Kimball is president, is a very active body. The Epworth league recently received its charter and is in a very healthy condition, and is a very president. The following local preachers conduct services when the pastor is absent: John Gill, John Slapp, James Polglase.

RICH LANDS AWAIT COMING OF FARMER

Fertile, Irrigated Valleys About Missoula Are Factors in Opening a Great Era of Prosperity for the Thriving Montana Town.

PRODUCTS BRING HIGH PRICES IN HOME MARTS.

Fruit and Grain Growers Make Big Profits. Railroad and Industrial Development to Give "Garden City" Additional Population.

There is no more famous fruit raising territory in the country than the Bitter Root valley. It was this valley that Marcus Daly selected as the ideal spot for his rural home some twenty-five years ago. The famous Daly farm is still a show spot, and it proved the worth of the bench lands, lying a step higher than the bottom acres, when once irrigated. The bottoms of the Bitter Root have long been turned into fruit and vegetable farms by judicious use of water, and a big new irrigation project is under way, making fertile farm lands of the benches on the east side of the river, from the Daly estate north nearly to Missoula. This will reclaim and turn into farms 30,000 acres of this land. What this means to the country can be appreciated when it is known that from ten acres so irrigated and planted with fruit and garden truck a family can make a fine living. This land is now available at a moderate price, but the revenue from improved land is so large that orchards have jumped in value from $1,500 to $2,500 an acre, and there is a limit to the supply of such land on the market.

Markets Right at the Door

Not only is the water supply and the yearly crop a certain matter, but the market is unexcelled by any agricultural section in the world. The population of Montana's mining cities and lumber camps buys heavily of farms products of every kind, and at the present time great quantities are shipped in at long distances from the middle Western states. Naturally prices are extremely high. Wages are high and people do not object to paying what would be called extortionate rates for food in the East.

This market is close to Missoula, Butte being only 126 miles away by rail, and other consuming cities within a hundred miles or so, while Missoula herself is no small factor. So everything seems to be combined in favor of the man who takes irrigated farm lands in the Missoula country. But for the fact that the country is new and not populated with farmers as it will be in a few years, land values would be far higher than they are at present. Under such conditions they must advance rapidly soon, for it is easy to demonstrate by actual example the money that there is in a few acres.

Many fruit raisers in the Bitter Root are netting from $200 to $600 an acre. Some orchards have brought a net cash return as high as $1,500. The Alexander apple is figured to average $500 an acre, and the Transcendent Crab $1,000 an acre. The profit is easily 75 per cent of the sum received. The crab apples are entirely free from the codling moth, which makes them such a poor investment in other localities.

"Were you ever tried?" asked Mr. Darrow. "No, sir."

"You looked very carefully?" asked Senator Borah. "Yes, sir. I did and I looked for the informal machinery they talk about, but I did not find it."

"You were arrested for creating disturbance among non-union men?" "No, sir."

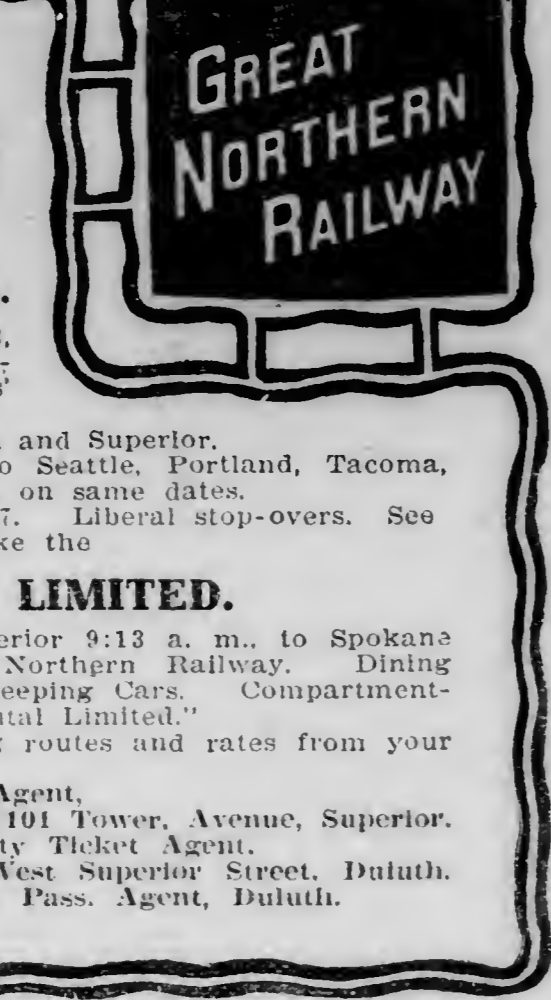

"Collins said his house was only 125 feet from the explosion. The explosion broke two windows in the house and stopped a clock. His mother and father were awakened by the explosion, but none had curiosity enough to look out to see what happened."

"Who was Beemore?" asked Darrow. "He was a deputy sheriff and at one time marshal of Independence."

"Was he in the employ of the mine owners?" "He was generally supposed to be."

"The last answer was stricken out as hearsay."

On cross-examination, Taylor said he saw Beemore at the depot the morning after the explosion. Attorney Hawley tried to show by the witness that Beemore had gone to the scene of the explosion immediately after it occurred and then returned directly to his house.

MARINE NEWS CHANNEL TO BE OPENED

Government Engineers Will Again Go After Captain Reid. Think He Has Been Given Plenty of Additional Time.

The channel through the south span of the interlake bridge is still blocked by the wrecking operations being carried on by Capt. Reid, who has the contract for raising the wrecked bridge. It has been expected that the channel would be clear several weeks ago, but no boats have been permitted to pass as yet.

For the past few days Capt. Reid has been on a trip down the lakes inspecting other contract jobs which he has, but he is expected to return to this city today. He is, however, in the opinion of the engineers that Capt. Reid has been given plenty of time and he will be asked to clear the channel next week.

CONTAGIOUS DISEASES. Eveleth Man Objects to Story of an Epidemic There.

To the Editor of the Herald: The article concerning contagious diseases, which appeared in The Herald of June 25, was in error so far as Eveleth is concerned, as none of these cases have come from this city to Duluth to my knowledge, and I see no reason why you should get "cold feet" on our account.

THE BICYCLE AGAIN COMING INTO ITS OWN

Its Use Extending in all Directions Once More.

That the use of the bicycle has doubled and tripled within the last three or four years, with no more comment on the new conditions than has been shown, is pretty good evidence of the size of the country and its capacity for absorbing an enormous output without attracting much attention.

The statement published widely some time ago that more than two and a half million wheels are in general use in Great Britain, rather gives a key to the situation over here. Since the lowest point in wheel manufacture on this side of the water was touched, some seven or eight years ago, the annual output has grown by leaps and bounds. More than half a million more wheels will be made this year than were produced in 1904, and they are absorbed so easily that the casual observer does not note the fact.

It is true that more women riders are seen this season, and that is both an eye-opener and an augury for increased health and happiness for the sex that has always been somewhat neglected throughout the country, and especially by the directors of physical culture in women's colleges and the leading branches of the Y. WITHROW ENDED LIFE WITH CARBOLIC ACID

DULUTHIAN A SUICIDE

Recent Nervous Break-down Evidently Affected His Mind.

Had Been Subject to Frequent Fits of Melancholia.

Helena, Mont., June 29.—H. C. Withrow of Duluth, Minn., who came here two weeks ago for the benefit of his health, committed suicide yesterday at the home of his brother-in-law by drinking carbolic acid. He was 40 years old and unmarried.

The above brief dispatch was received this morning from Helena. The news of Mr. Withrow's death was reported last evening in The Herald, and it was stated at that time that death was due to a general nervous breakdown. Mr. Withrow had been suffering from such a condition when he left Duluth, and it was feared that he would never recover when he went West. His physical condition was such that it affected his mind, and there were times when he was not in his right senses. He doubtless took his life when in such a condition, as during these

PARK POINT NOW HAS EXCELLENT PROTECTION AGAINST FIRE

THE PARK POINT FIRE CAR.

Next Monday the city will close the deal for the purchase of the fire car from the Interstate Traction company. The city has made arrangements with the railway company to maintain the car at its barn and furnish a man to run it at any time, for $1 per day. The car, which is shown in the accompanying photograph, taken yesterday afternoon, is one of the open vehicles formerly in use for passenger service, known as No. 5. It has been stripped of seats and reconstructed into a fire car, carrying several hundred feet of hose in the upper and lower compartments. The fire fighting equipment will be handled by the Park Point volunteer fire department. It is likely that the department will make a few trials runs with the car attaching the hose and going through with the usual maneuvers of a department when fighting a fire.

JOSEPH G. CANNON OF ILLINOIS

By SAVOYARD.

(Copyrighted by E. W. Newman.) That I have worn a crown and could tell A whispering tale in a fair lady's ear Such as would please.

In the work of president-making now going on from ocean to ocean, it would be a mistake to eliminate this man from calculation. Though past three score years and ten, he is vigorous and could yet tread a measure on the punchbowl floor at a couple o'clock in the morning to the elating tune of "a mess y chicken."

I take it that the ancestors of Speaker Cannon were driven out of New England for their religion. They were natives of that section and Quakers. The English and Quaker science of that day scorned to be heaven in company with a Quaker, and persecuted the sect. The Cannon family found a refuge and a welcome in North Carolina, and there the future statesman was born in 1826, May 7.

But the Quakers, too, had a conscience that led them to a condition of trouble, and they refused to go to heaven with a slave owner, and the parents of Mr. Cannon took them to the West to grow up with the country. Perhaps they tarried a while in Indiana, but finally they settled in Illinois, close to the Wabash. There Joe was a sturdy boy, healthy, active, self-reliant. The Cannon boys and Whigs, followers of Henry Clay, and long in the minority, for until 1850 Illinois was a reliable vote for the state, even voting for Martin Van Buren in 1840, when the Whig ideal was being pushed.

In that early day Douglas, Lamson, Trumbull and Palmer were opposed to Lincoln, Hamilton, Lincoln and Oglesby, and Illinois was famous for its fierce political strife. The boy Cannon was a Whig, and the young man Cannon was a charter member of the Republican party.

Aggressive and self-confident, Joseph G. Cannon secured a common school education, studied law and politics. He was prosecuting attorney seven years in 1872, and a member of congress. He was seventeen times renominated by his party and sixteen times re-elected. He was a member of the national legislature in congress from 1872 to 1893. He was elected to the senate in 1893, and served until 1905. He was elected to the senate in 1905, and served until 1907.

The forty-third congress lived when carpet buggery and sealawagery were not yet eradicated at the South, but the Senators and Representatives were A. H. Stephens, L. Q. C. Lamar, Roger Q. Mills and Eppa Hunton, Beck and John Young Brown were from Kentucky. Among the Northern Democrats were Fernando Wood, S. S. Lusk, John T. Morgan, Samuel J. Randall, John R. Eden, S. S. Marshall and William H. Morrison. The last three colleagues were from Illinois. On the Republican side were Kasson, Blaine, Hale, Benjamin D. Day, the brothers Hoar, Burrows, Treman, Kelley and Horace Maynard.

It was among these giants that Joseph G. Cannon rose, and his name was satisfactorily arranged. When Reed left congress and politics in disgust, there were numerous candidates for speaker, and Cannon was prominent among them. Speaker Reed had been chosen by the Illinois delegation had not brought out Albert J. Hopkins against him. All of them are now for Cannon for president. Henderson was elected speaker, and Cannon retained appropriations, of which committee he was a powerful advocate, a ripe scholar, a wise statesman. Years before Philander C. Knox pleaded in the supreme court against the Northern Securities merger, John Young Brown, then governor of Kentucky, against the counsel of trusted advisers, took into the courts the merger of the Louisville & Nashville railroad, and that part of the Illinois Central, that lies in Kentucky, and was acquired from C. P. Huntington. Brown's action then was prophetic of future policies. Roosevelt followed the example of Millard T. Eisenhower thunder appropriated.

Mr. Cannon was not a show man on the floor. His was a slow growth. No prominent man owes so much to experience. His rise was long delayed, but he finally got a judgment of the committee on appropriations and then his industry did the rest. He developed great business capacity and a keen shrewdness. After all, industry is what tells in this life. Who that saw them and heard them supposed that Joseph G. Cannon would reach a higher place in our parliamentary history than James A. McKenzies? But it is not strange that he did, when we come to know that while McKenzies was revealing in Bulwer, Cannon was deep in treasury estimates. Cannon had a contempt for the marvelous genius of the Frenchman; McKenzies had an aversion to detail. In practical statesmanship the tortoise beats the hare every time. As an eloquent speaker McKenzies had few equals, as a conversationalist he was unrivaled. His knowledge of literature was prodigious; his sense of humor delightful. He laughed, as well as argued, free quinine through congress. Sir Walter Scott's descriptions of the passages between Lawyer Playdell and Dominie Sampson describe tariff disputations between "Quinine Jim" McKenzies and "Pig Iron" Kelley. McKenzies was the best example of American country gentleman—handsome, elegant, scholarly, generous, brilliant, farmer, lawyer, student, artist in his tastes, genial in his associations. We shall not soon look on his like again.

or Troy against the billion expense account. That ringtailed monkey from the Tuscarora came on to fight that Kangaroo. He looked and he used to be used to the ground. He was tall and fought another round. That is the way Uncle Josie fought prodigality. It was the longest session in the history of congress, and daily the appropriations swelled, until they touched the billion mark. That fall Joe was beaten for congress by a Democratic farmer of the name of Casey. However, excellent a farmer, he was not a Busy d'Amboise in parliament, and his presence in the house served only to direct attention to the absence of Cannon. There is all too much of that sort of thing in American politics.

After two successive Democratic congresses the Republicans again got control of the house in the fifty-fourth congress, have held it ever since, and at this reading, there is slim prospect of their dislodgment in 1908, or any other year. Cannon was again a member, and Speaker Reed was much embarrassed by the antics of Cannon to the chairmanship of appropriations. Dave Henderson had the "age" owing to the favor of Speaker Reed, but Cannon danned himself if it was not appropriations or nothing with him. He was much better fitted for it than Henderson, and Reed kept the peace by giving Henderson the judiciary and the whole thing was satisfactorily arranged.

The forty-fourth, forty-fifth and forty-sixth congresses were Democratic. Cannon plodded along, gaining a little every session. In the forty-seventh congress he was mentioned as speaker, and I believe he was one of the favorites that Page of California, and Hazlett of Wisconsin contended for. The forty-eighth, forty-ninth and fiftieth congresses were Democratic. Cannon had become very prominent on the Republican side. Nothing of an orator, his strength was in his vast and accurate knowledge of the business and the details of the annual appropriation bills. He was a sure-footed candidate for speaker of the fifty-first congress, and he won. He was appointed speaker of the house in 1901, and he served until 1906. He was elected to the senate in 1905, and served until 1907.

Plenty of Duluth Workers Have This Experience.

You tax the kidneys—overwork them. They can't keep up the continual strain. The back gives out—it aches and pains. Urinary troubles set in. Don't wait longer—take Doan's Kidney Pills.

Duluth people tell you how they act. Ernest Grokes of 926 Fourth avenue east of Park, Duluth, Minn., says: "I speak from experience when I say Doan's Kidney Pills are a reliable and valuable remedy. I first heard of their merits from a friend who had received gratifying results in his own case, and I was then suffering from severe dull pains in the small of my back and joints and had become so bad that the doctor ordered me to give up work. I procured a supply of Doan's Kidney Pills and began using them. Although the remedy is so simple, it has done for me what I had been unable to do by other means. I soon noticed the benefit and kept on using Doan's Kidney Pills until the pain and the urinary troubles were entirely free from the trouble."

Junta that brought about the defeat of the F. Dryden, claimed by La Follette. William E. Chandler of New Hampshire has declared the Republican national convention. He is a logical candidate, but Mr. Chandler's ability to deliver a delegation is admitted to be problematical.

Senator La Follette is in the fight to a finish. He will be the Republican counter-irritant of William H. Reed and will not be jarred by the prospect of a defeat. His friends intimate that he will get out of the race for one man only—Theodore Roosevelt. He intends to be the leader of the new political thought and to lead the nation into the House on the crest of a wave of popular discontent incident to hard times, whatever you call it. The La Follette candidacy will be one of the distinct features of the next Republican national convention. It seems to be well supplied with cash since the election of Isaac Stephenson as the successor of John C. Spooner in the senate. Mr. La Follette himself is no mean spender. He has nearly a million dollars in revenues from his official salary and Chautauque work are promptly poured into the treasury.

The La Follette following professes allegiance to the president, but they are complaining bitterly of his treatment of the Republican convention. It was reported last winter that the president saw much in La Follette's ideas to admire. He has been quoted as having said: "Sometimes I think La Follette is a well known fact that all the revenues from the wicked man on horseback and the foolish man on stump, and as long as we are guarded against these two we have little to fear."

Uncle Joe is no mollycoddle, and hence there are plenty of men in both parties who would do better for president than he, but Uncle Joe is not prone to opening Pandora boxes and things, and hence also it would be a better president fitted for it than Henderson, and Reed kept the peace by giving Henderson the judiciary and the whole thing was satisfactorily arranged.

WISE MEN TO DEFAUD

Officials of Wisconsin Grain and Stock Company Arrested.

Worked Scheme for Pecuniary Gain at Superior, Wis.

St. Paul, June 29.—Lewin A. Wood, George W. Wood, Bruce D. Tuttle and Martin P. Quigley were arrested by United States deputy marshals yesterday afternoon on warrants charging them with using the mails for fraudulent purposes. Warrants also are out for the arrest of Charles T. Kelley and Clinton D. Phelps of St. Paul and E. P. Earnsberger of Superior, Wis., on a similar charge. The prisoners appeared before United States Commissioner Spencer and pleaded not guilty, and were released on bail. L. A. Wood and G. W. Wood furnishing bonds in the sum of $5,000 each, and each of the others a bond for $3,000. The hearing was held at 10 o'clock.

These warrants were issued on the report of W. M. Ketchum, one of the postoffice inspectors of Chicago, and they charge that these men, who were the promoters and officers of the Wisconsin Grain & Stock company, with offices at 349 Robert street, St. Paul, and promoters and managers of the Superior board of trade, conspired to defraud the United States mail in violation of section 449 of the revised statutes of the United States.

The government alleges, according to the report of Ketchum, that the record of losses sustained through the medium of the operations of the company mentioned by its method of holding back on quotations until a price could be reached, which advanced the market so far reported, reached the sum of $342,000. The government, in its complaint, charges that about May 1, 1906, L. A. Wood visited Superior, Wis., and leased the headquarters of what was then known as the Superior board of trade, which was defunct. He engaged divers persons under monthly contracts to represent the company as independent brokers, simultaneously with that a company was organized under the laws of Wisconsin with an alleged capital of $2,000 under the name of The Wisconsin Grain & Stock company with Clinton D. Phelps, who has been formerly employed by Wood as an agent at Aberdeen, S. D., as president of the new company, Martin Quigley, secretary, and Charles L. Lang as secretary; and Bruce B. Tuttle. With the organization of the company, representations both verbal and in print were made that the Wisconsin Grain & Stock Co. were legitimate dealers in grain, oil, oilseeds, and market letters were mailed to induce persons to place in the company their orders for the purchase of grain and stock.

The concern established 900 offices in the states of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, and all of them at the instigation of the promoters, it is charged, solicited the purchase and sale of stock and grain. The government charges that for commission the concern accepted it entered a fraud as it did not purchase or sell the grain or commodity but kept the margin funds deposited for the protection of trades, on the market fluctuation instead of making the trade in the market as they represented would be done in circulars and advertisements charging the company buying and selling of grain and stocks as done on the Superior board of trade with the members of the board. The premium based his defense of the government's use of force upon the ground that the situation in the south, with 200 municipalities striking, and their population refusing to pay taxes, could not be tolerated.

With consummate skill he replied to the reproaches that he had become reactionary by recalling the long years of suffering which he had fought in the ranks against oppression, and referring to the time when, as a member of the senate, he had endeavored to save French oilmen in endeavoring to save French oilmen from the hands of the government. After M. Clemenceau had concluded, M. Jaures, the Socialist leader, had declared in principle, but it was too late to make an impression and by a succession of votes, the cabinet was sustained.

Paris, June 29.—The chamber of deputies last night, by a decisive majority of 129, after an exciting eight-hour debate, voted confidence in the government's policy to insure respect for the law. Premier Clemenceau's policy was more decisive than his most ardent friends had expected. During the session the extreme Socialists, who started the attack on the government, put forward speaker after speaker from the south, but notwithstanding the savage blows they struck, they proved to be no match for M. Clemenceau, who is a past master in parliamentary debate. The premier based his defense of the government's use of force upon the ground that the situation in the south, with 200 municipalities striking, and their population refusing to pay taxes, could not be tolerated.

BIG LIFT FOR TOWN.

Parry Sound Gets Busy—Reaping a Rich Reward for Enterprise.

Toronto, Ont., June 28.—The little city of Parry Sound, Ont., is reaping the reward for recently voting a bonus of $100,000 to the Dominion Smelters company to aid in building a smelter costing $1,500,000, with 1,000 tons per day capacity, at which 400 men will be employed and who will receive at least $4,000 per day in wages. It will be one of the largest, best equipped and thoroughly up-to-date smelters in America. The company owns 200 acres on the Parry Sound harbor and declares their intention of employing a large number of men to push the construction work to the limit during the summer months. Plans for the building are almost completed and the ground is being prepared for the foundation. Arrangements are also made for building upon the property purchased 200 houses for employes of the company. With the new railroad connecting there and the new industry to utilize the great mineral resources of the vicinity of Parry Sound is no longer the quiet town on the bay.

Mama, Be Warned! Protect the Little Ones!

MAMA! Don't be frightened—but be warned! Every Mother knows, or should know that the terrible Mortality among children is caused by Stomach and Bowel troubles. Colic, Sour Curd, Cholera Infantum, Summer Complaint, Measles, Rash, Scarlet Fever—even Mumps—have their first cause in constipation.

The delicate Tissues of a Baby's Bowels will stand rough treatment. Salts are too violent. Castor Oil will only grease the passages, but will not make and keep them Clean, Healthy and Strong.

There is no other medicine as safe for a child as Cascarets, the fragrant little Candy Tablet, that has saved thousands of families from unhappiness. The Nursing Mother should always keep her Milk Mildly Purgative by taking a Cascaret at night before going to bed. No other medicine has this remarkable and valuable quality. Mama take the Cascarets, Baby gets the Benefit. Cascarets act like strengthening Exercise on the weak little bowels of the growing babe, and make them able to get all the Nourishment out of Baby's Natural Food.

Larger children cannot always be watched, and will eat uncleanly. The Ready Remedy should ever be at hand—Cascarets—to take care of the trouble when it comes. No need to Force or Bribe children to take Cascarets. They are always home than ready to eat the sweet little bit of Candy. Home is not complete without the ever Ready Box of Cascarets. Ten cents buys a small one at the Corner Drug Store. Be very careful to get the genuine, made only by the Sterling Remedy Company and never sold in bulk. Every tablet stamped "CCC."

SCHMITZ ARRIGNED ON TWO MORE INDICTMENTS.

San Francisco, June 29.—Before Judge Dunne, yesterday, Mayor Schmitz was arraigned on two indictments charging him with accepting a bribe of $3,200 from the officials of the San Francisco Gas & Electric Company, and with accepting a bribe of $5,000 from the officials of the United Railroads, to withhold his veto from an ordinance passed by the board of supervisors, fixing the gas rate for 1906-7 at 35 cents, instead of 70 cents; the other of $5,000 from the United Railroads, to withhold his veto from an ordinance permitting that corporation to electrify its street car system. Judge Dunne set July 2 for the trial of the mayor, who will answer these indictments.

CLEMENCEAU IS VICTORIOUS

The French Premier Receives Decisive Vote of Confidence.

Paris, June 29.—The chamber of deputies last night, by a decisive majority of 129, after an exciting eight-hour debate, voted confidence in the government's policy to insure respect for the law. Premier Clemenceau's policy was more decisive than his most ardent friends had expected. During the session the extreme Socialists, who started the attack on the government, put forward speaker after speaker from the south, but notwithstanding the savage blows they struck, they proved to be no match for M. Clemenceau, who is a past master in parliamentary debate. The premier based his defense of the government's use of force upon the ground that the situation in the south, with 200 municipalities striking, and their population refusing to pay taxes, could not be tolerated.

UNION LABOR NEWS WILL WORK TOGETHER CANDIDATE IS NAMED

Two Leading Marine Organizations Have Settled Differences.

Rivalry Has Been Bitter Between Them for Years.

Through an agreement reached this week at a meeting held at Buffalo, an end to the strife and rivalry between the two marine organizations known as the Marine Engineers' beneficial association and the Licensed Tugmen's Protective association has been reached, and the two organizations will hereafter work together.

For many years there has been considerable rivalry between these two organizations over the question of jurisdiction, each claiming more than its share. Originally the Marine Engineers' association was supposed to include all engineers on lake steamers, while the Licensed Tugmen's association included only engineers and captains on harbor craft.

The latter organization had its beginning here in Duluth in 1900 and James Walsh, now superintendent of the state free labor bureau, was its first organizer. From the Duluth local, the organization was later made a national one, and local associations were formed all along the lakes.

The climax in the rivalry between the two organizations came during the past winter, when the convention of the Marine Engineers, it was voted that the members could not hereafter belong to the L. T. P. A. and still retain membership in the M. E. B. A. Following this action the L. T. P. A. took the same policy and as a result many of the members who had for many years belonged to both associations were compelled to give up membership in one or the other.

BIG OUTDOOR MEETINGS.

Society of Equity Holding Them at Various Points.

At a meeting of the American Society of Equity held at Hugo, Minn., last Monday, A. H. Garfield, president of the St. Paul Trades and Labor assembly was the principal speaker. Garfield, who is a special organizer for the state federation of labor attended the meeting as a representative of that body.

Mr. Garfield's talk on the subject of organization generally, with special reference to the good results which are to come from an organization of farmers, he also took up the matter of unionism and its end to some extent to child labor.

Others who addressed the meeting on the subject, primarily of union organization, were T. S. Morrill, president of the state organization of the Society of Equity and C. G. Billings, the Wisconsin state organizer for the same body.

Big outdoor meetings are to be a feature of the organization work of the Society this summer. A public district meeting was held this week at North French, Minn., and on July 4 a big meeting will be held at Bethel, Minn.

LABOR DAY COMMITTEE

Has Been Organized and is Planning Big Celebration.

Last Sunday a meeting of the Labor day committee of the Duluth unions was held at Kalamazoo hall, and the organization perfected. This year the labor unions expect to have a bigger celebration on Labor day than ever before, and the committee will soon be hard at work on the arrangements.

Another meeting of the committee will be held tomorrow at Kalamazoo hall and the preliminary arrangements for getting the celebration under way will be made. A full attendance of the members of the committee is desired.

Address Farmers' Society. At a big Fourth of July celebration at Bethel, Minn., W. E. McEwen, secretary-treasurer of the Minnesota State Federation of Labor, will deliver the address of the day to a gathering of the American Society of Equity, the organization of farmers which is making great progress in this state. Delegates will be present from all parts of the state.

Organized at St. Peter. It has been reported by Vice President Hartung of the Minnesota State Federation that an organization of garment workers has been formed at St. Peter, Minn., and he hopes soon to have contracts in shape so that union labels will be used in both of the two shirt factories there.

Trades Assembly Endorses C. W. F. Hegg for School Directorship.

Labor Interests Willing to Abolish City Employment Bureau.

As had been expected for the past few days, the Duluth Trades assembly, last evening, endorsed C. W. F. Hegg, treasurer of the assembly, as the official candidate of the labor organizations of the city for the office of school director. He received the unanimous vote of the members for the nomination.

Delegate James Walsh first brought the matter up, explaining that it would be of considerable benefit if organized labor could get a good strong man on the school board. He stated that if they nominated a candidate, however, they should stand by him and work hard for his election. Unless they are willing to do this he did not think it advisable to name or endorse a candidate.

A vote was taken and every member showed himself to be in favor of nominating a candidate, with the understanding that a strong campaign for his election would be made. Each delegate was directed to notify his local of the action taken, so that the candidate would get the support of all the members of organized labor.

Besides Mr. Hegg, nominated by Delegate Shartel, there were several others who were nominated, but declined or withdrew before the matter was put to a vote. Among these were J. H. Baker, Alexander Kennedy, James Walsh, Joseph Shartel and Walter Wick. Delegate Hunt and others maintained that only one candidate should be endorsed, and when this was put in form of a motion it was carried, and the candidates but Mr. Hegg withdrew, and he was unanimously endorsed.

Concord, N. H., June 29.—Judge Edgar Aldrich of Littleton, was appointed master to determine the competency of Mrs. Mary Baker G. Eddy by Judge Robert N. D., and others as "next friends" for an accounting of Mrs. Eddy's property. He may conduct inquiry in such places as he may see fit. He is given authority to certify to the

to be a great benefit to the labor interests. They declare that there was enough business for the two surveys, and that the city could well afford to continue to operate the local bureau.

When the matter came to a vote those in favor of sending the communication were greatly in the majority and the motion was carried.

A communication was read from the union of horse-shoers of Duluth stating that as the firm of Bridgeman & Russell were employing a non-union horse-shoer it should be placed upon the unfair list. A committee was appointed, composed of Delegate Thompson, Richard and Peters, to investigate the matter.

Mrs. Cayo, delegate from the Garment Workers' union, recently organized, made a statement to the assembly informing them that the firm of M. S. Shore & Co. are now using the union label on all goods, and that these goods can now be secured at several local stores.

Delegate Richard Jones of the local Telegraphers' union, told of a big strike which is being waged by the telegraphers in different parts of the country. He explained the telegraphers' side of the matter, and President Hunt directed the members to report it back to the local unions.

Credentials were presented by three new delegates at the meeting. They were received and the delegates obligated. They are H. C. Kern, Joe Bergfolk and Thomas O'Mara.

The delegates were informed that the semi-annual election of officers would be held at the next meeting of the assembly in two weeks.

Spanish-American War Veterans Establish Camp and Elect Officers.

There was a large attendance of the Spanish-American war veterans at Odd Fellows hall last evening for the re-organization of John McEwen camp, which was chartered a few years ago and afterwards disbanded. The movement to re-establish the camp and make it one of the strongest in the state, is meeting with great success, applications from men eligible to membership being made right along.

The temporary organization formed a few weeks ago was made permanent with J. M. Murray, president; Theodore T. Shoon, vice president; E. M. Kelly, secretary; W. L. Pierce, treasurer; E. L. Bender, chaplain; and Frank Storey, sergeant-at-arms. A constitution and set of by-laws were adopted.

MEETING OF FIRE BOARD

Park Point Fire Car Ready for Service Monday.

In response to protests from the Park Point residents in regard to the delay in purchasing the fire car for the Point, the board of fire commissioners, at its regular monthly meeting held yesterday afternoon at 4 o'clock in the mayor's office, decided to complete the deal Monday, and after that time it will be ready for service. The car will cost $500 and the city will pay the company $1 per day for its maintenance.

MEETING OF FIRE BOARD

Park Point Fire Car Ready for Service Monday.

Representatives of the Omaha road asked for information regarding the storing of dynamite. The company keeps a large quantity of the explosive in storage at Rice's Point, but the ordinance requires that while in charge of a railroad dynamite shall not be left in one place more than two hours. They say that if they are forced to live up to this provision they will be forced to run an engine with a car of dynamite across the bay to Superior and back every two hours, and the resulting danger will be much greater.

The board referred the matter to the city attorney, who has advised that Chief Black submitted another request that the telephone operators be supplied with headquarters in order to do away with the mistakes of the firemen who take turns at the telephone desk. He also reported a number of vacancies in the department.

HEN'S PECK

Caused the Indiana Contractor to Die in Great Agony.

Anderson, Ind., June 29.—That a hen-pecked man may die was demonstrated sadly here when Joseph B. Bryan, aged 60 years, a retired building contractor, defied in great agony from blood poisoning that developed at a point in his scalp where a hen had pecked him so freely that blood had flowed. The following day Bryan, who apparently had been in excellent health, fell very ill, and his physician declared that the hen's peck had caused it. Bryan had undertaken to lift the hen from her nest when she attacked him. Despite his efforts at defense the bird flew against his head and sank its bill freely in his scalp. Then she attacked hilariously. The hen was a "sitter."

DEFENDANT MAKES NOVEL EXCUSE FOR FAILURE TO PAY ALIMONY.

Milwaukee, June 29.—Judge I had to have some teeth to eat with. That took all my money so I couldn't send any alimony. This was the excuse offered Judge Williams in a letter received from a husband who had been remitting weekly installments of alimony to the court. Judge Williams would not tell the man, demanding an explanation of his failure to produce the alimony and received the ingenious explanation quoted.

PILFERING THE MAILS.

Postmaster's Son Obtained Diamond-Studded Match Safes and Using.

Pittsburg, Pa., June 29.—Using diamond-studded match safes and traveling on mining books which were never bought by him, along with the wide swath he was cutting in the social whirl, caused the downfall of James Henry Clay Cochran, son of the Postmaster of Pittsburg's exclusive social suburb, Apollo.

Cochran was arrested by Postoffice Inspector Twibbles soon after he had pilfered the match safes. The mileage books and diamond-studded match safe Cochran admitted he had pilfered from his father's office. He was one of the young social leaders of Apollo, and his arrest has caused a decided sensation in the pretty little town.

We Offer A Specialist

ARTHUR H. SPENCER

SPECIALIST IN PELVIC DISORDERS OF MEN.

The safest, surest and most modern scientific treatment of chronic venereal diseases. Our success in curing permanently these maladies that wreck manhood is attested by our enormous practice. Men come from every section of the Northwest to receive our advice and assistance. We offer you the services of a physician without a peer in private diseases—a physician who sees and treats hundreds of cases every month—a physician who knows at sight every condition of the chronic maladies peculiar to the male sex—in short, we offer you the services of Long established. Permanently located in Duluth, and with ample resources to make good our claims.

Established in Duluth Since 1856. The Northwest's Most Successful and Reliable SPECIALIST IN DISEASES OF MEN.

Urethral Obstructions. It matters not how long you have suffered from urethral obstruction or how many different doctors have been consulted, we will guarantee you our treatment will make you as well as before you were troubled with this disease. Our treatment dissolves the obstruction, leaving the urinary passage entirely free from obstruction. It relieves all irritation, and also relieves any sympathetic disturbance in the bladder or kidneys.

Male Weakness. This disease of the functions by no means indicates general nervous decline, but is a direct result of inflammation, enlargement or excessive sensitiveness of the prostate gland brought on by early dissipation or resulting from some improperly treated contracted disease. These conditions cannot always be removed by internal medicines, alone, and any tonic system of treatment that stimulates the functions of the prostate gland is a scientific truth that we have ascertained by careful study and observation in aggravated cases, and is the truth upon which our original system of treatment is based. We treat mainly by local methods, and our success in curing even the most advanced cases has often failed to even temporarily relieve with their tonics in conclusive evidence that our method affords the only positive means of a complete and radical cure.

Renal Complaints. Kidney diseases affect a large number, although many are in ignorance of their trouble and attribute their unwell condition to some other cause. Male excesses, alcoholic liquors, severe sickness, which weaken the kidneys, often produce kidney diseases, and the usual symptoms are highly colored urine, with strong odor, sediment in urine, frequent urination or irregular, chilly and feverish spells, worn-out feeling, puffiness under the eyes or swellings. Our long study and extensive practice in the treatment of all forms of kidney disease has familiarized us to the extent that we have attained skill which insures successful treatment in all cases that are not incurable. We determine the condition of the kidneys by a scientific analysis of urine and the many severe kidney troubles we have cured by our systematic course of treatment, after being given up by analysis by other physicians, gives us such confidence in our method as to assure every case we accept a permanent cure.

Specific Blood Poison. The most hideous of all venereal diseases can no longer be classed as incurable. The idea that the limit of medical aid is to keep the disease dormant by persistently dosing the system with mineral poisons is as incorrect as many other ancient theories to which many of the practicing class cling. Our cure is thorough and permanent, and every symptom of the disease vanishes forever.

Fergus Falls, Minn., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—Hit on the head by the handle of a wheel scraper while filling a ditch near his home in the vicinity of Evansville, Nels Olson, a young farmer, was instantly killed.

WISCONSIN

THEY TOOK ABOUT ALL

Thieves Make a Clean Sweep in a Pullman Sleeping Car.

Eau Claire Man Has an Unpleasant Western Experience.

Eau Claire, Wis., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—Fred A. Allen of Eau Claire and his wife, who left here a few days ago for Tacoma, Wash., met with a very unpleasant experience on the journey. They were passengers on a Northern Pacific train which was stalled during the night at Forsyth, Mont., by a cloudburst. When the passengers in the Pullman car in which Mr. and Mrs. Allen were traveling awoke the next morning and proceeded to dress themselves they were horrified to find that the sleeper had been robbed during the night and every berth had been visited, especially the articles under the berths. There must have been several thousand dollars' worth of property taken.

One man, a geologist, had all his instruments taken. They were valued at $500.

Everybody in the car lost something. Mrs. Allen's suit case was taken. Almost everything was new.

It seemed very remarkable that in a vestibule coach, with two porters as guards, that passengers should be systematically robbed.

UPPER MICHIGAN

WILL HONOR GREAT NAME

One Hundredth Anniversary of Garibaldi's Birth to be Observed.

Calumet, Mich., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The one hundredth anniversary of the birth of Giuseppe Garibaldi, the famed Italian liberator, will be celebrated here next Saturday and Sunday by Italians from three states, Michigan, Wisconsin and Minnesota.

The celebration promises to be one of the most romantic ever held in the upper peninsula. Saturday morning there will be a parade through the city and the village of Laurium. The line of march will be up Seventh street to Pine to Fifth street, passing south on the Red Jacket road to Pine street, then down Lake Linden avenue to Hecla street, Laurium, as far as Second street, returning by Red Jacket way to Calumet avenue, Red Jacket road. The parade will end at the fair park, where the exercises of the day will be held.

Included in the line of march will be the Calumet & Hecla band, the Red Jacket city band, the Taniarack band, the South Range band, the Quincy band and several bands from the Iron country. It is expected the procession will be one of the largest ever in Calumet.

The speakers of the day will be Attorney P. H. O'Brien, who will speak in English and A. Castiglano, who will address the Italians in their own language. Both are gifted orators. The afternoon will be given over to sports and dancing. A number of athletic events are being arranged, and a feature will be special Italian games, for which prizes will be offered. Dancing at the park in the evening with the serving of refreshments and supper will close the first day's celebration.

On Sunday, at noon, preparations have been made for a grand banquet for persons at a banquet in the Italian hall. At that the patriotic and other songs will be sung, and the Italian and Italian songs will be given during the hours of 2 and 5 o'clock. The concert will be of an informal nature, so that persons may come and go during their rendition.

The celebration will close at night with a grand opera, entitled "Risorgimento." The cast will be made up of local talent, and the scenery and costumes are now being held.

DAKOTAS

HANDWORK OF INDIANS

One of the Finest Collections is Being Installed in Bismarck.

Bismarck, N. D., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—The famous Bingenheimer Sioux collection is being installed in the rooms of the State Historical society here by J. A. Tanner, the custodian of the society.

This is one of the finest collections of Sioux handwork in existence and contains 124 pieces, consisting of various articles used in every condition of Indian life, whether at home, on the war path or in the chase.

There are tepees, robes, decorated buffalo and cow hides, Indian historical paintings, cow-sticks, deer skin suits, saddle bags, bows, arrows, guns, knives, pipes, tobacco pouches, game sticks, paddle caps and nearly every kind of bead and quill work known.

The collection is loaned by George H. Bingenheimer of Mandan, and it is hoped that some day it will become the property of the historical society, as it will be a difficult matter to duplicate in historical value.

Mr. Tanner is doing much good work, but he is handicapped for lack of cases in which to protect and display the collection and books of the society.

Only eight of the original eighty in the crew under Jud Freeman, which started the drive from Brainerd about a week ago, remained, and as the water is falling the remaining drivers will have their hands full to keep the logs moving.

GRIM PRACTICAL JOKE.

Dynamite Cap in Cigar Robs Miner of an Eye and Some Teeth.

Ashland, Wis., June 29.—(Special to The Herald.)—One of the cruellest practical jokes ever perpetrated in this section cost Mike Bourtsiak, a miner, at Ironwood, an eye, two teeth and a general disfigurement of his face. He was given a cigar loaded with a dynamite cap and the explosive went off as he was removing the dynamite cap from his mouth to see why it did not draw better. This probably saved his jaw and probably his life as the dynamite cap exploded at the instant he was taking the cigar from his mouth. As it was, the force of the explosion broke a portion of the cap in his eye. It is probable that the practical joker will be arrested and taught a lesson.

TO EAT AN ORANGE.

How is an orange to be eaten is the problem that a Berlin writer tries to solve by describing the customs of various countries. A grumpy old naval officer is quoted as saying: "I prefer to eat mine in a bathtub, and for more healthful than lemonade."

France has no canon of orange eating, but it has a specialty in the consumption of orangeade. This is made by squeezing the juice from the orange with a little of the aromatic essence from the peel. This is mixed with water, cooled and sweetened and is said to be quite as refreshing and far more healthful than lemonade.

It is a beverage particularly relished by the German emperor. William II is said to drink a goblet of pure juice of sweet oranges every night before going to bed, especially when he is on his yacht.

BLIND-CLOCK MENDER.

Charles Walters, who lives on Argentine boulevard, Armourelle, is an expert clock repairer, although he is totally blind, says the Kansas City Star. Mr. Walters was graduated from the Kansas State Institution for the Blind twelve years ago. Clock repairing is not taught in that school. Mr. Walters learned it shortly after graduation and has since been engaged in the business.

He took a course in piano tuning in the institution and he is quite a good one of this work. Success in tuning musical instruments depends almost entirely on the ears, and the eyes are not an important factor. Many blind people follow this profession, but Walters takes the more precise in his clock repairing success in this line he has largely by intuition.

It is interesting to watch Mr. Walters work. He would rather be an expert jeweler in order before him, as he might mistake the parts of a watch as he puts them together. He has no clock to fix, but when he picks up the wheels and other delicate parts and adjusts them without any hesitation, it seems as though he were largely by intuition.

"No, I can't fix a watch," said Mr. Walters. "Here is, of course, a limit to the sense of touch. The parts of a watch are so small and delicate that they cannot be adjusted without the use of the eyesight. In most cases the eyes must be supplemented by a magnifying glass. But I can fix any clock that's made."

"I have felt that if I had any eyesight I would rather be an expert jeweler and watch repairer than anything else. Since I was a small boy I have had a special fondness for taking intricate machinery apart and putting it together again. Now when I have no clock to fix and am lonesome for something to do, I will get out one of the old clocks I have on hand and take it apart and put it back together. Just for the pleasure I find in the work."

It may be flavored with a glass of sherry or a little rum or with a dash of maraschino. The fragrance and taste of these mingled fruits are a joy to the soul in the summer.

In Germany the orange is usually placed on the table whole. No man is ever known to tackle one, but some woman will often take pity on her sister partner, extricate the fruit from the skin and slice it with him.

The German way is to pass the fruit knife around the orange from one pole

SEEKING HIS MOTHER.

The Son Learned That She Had Been Buried at Sea.

New York, June 29.—When the Cunard Line steamship Corona, from Liverpool, was warped into her dock a young man approached one of the officers and said:

"I am looking for Mrs. S. M. Camp of Liverpool. She is my mother. I am here to meet her, but I cannot find her."

The officer said: "Please come with me."

When the two men reached the purser's office the under officer stood aside and said:

"Are you Mr. Camp of Buffalo?" was asked of the young man.

"Yes, my mother said 'M.' he started to go, but was cut short by the words:

"Mr. Camp, it is my sad duty to inform you that your mother was taken suddenly ill. She died on Saturday and was buried at sea on Sunday. I will see that all her belongings are turned over to you, sir."

The young man was kept from falling by the under officer. For an hour he sat speechless, his head buried in his hands.

ANCIENT NORSE ANCHOR.

Remarkable find unearthed at the state experimental farm, near Crookston, Minn. The anchor was found in a hole in the earth which had been dug by the sixty men of the experimental farm, who were engaged in the construction of a tunnel, when they became separated from the main party on the North American coast, and were never heard of afterwards. The anchor is light, weighing not more than thirty pounds. It consists of a rather heavy cylindrical center piece and from sockets on either side prongs project, the prongs swelling on iron pins through the center

PROGRESS OF THE KEWEENAW

Depth of 650 Feet at the Medora Attained and Rich Looking Copper Disclosed--The Mine Never Looked Better.

Calumet, Mich., June 29.—The Keweenaw Copper company's property at Mandan, in Keweenaw county, looms up in an ever increasing manner, and excellent progress is being made in the development of the property...

ACTIVE AT GREENE-CANANEA

All the Properties Showing Up Well and Activity and Results Are the Words That Describe the Situation--Progress Being Made With All Speed Possible.

Cananea, Mex., June 29.—Throughout the Greene-Cananea divisions and all the properties of the company activity and results are the words. Progress with all work in hand, and there is a heap of it, is being made with all the speed possible in conformity with thoroughness. All prevailing conditions are excellent. The program is being worked out on scheduled time and will see results coming from the increased output of ores and the greater smelter capacity which will then be effective.

SHATTUCK SMELTER PLANS

Directors to Meet at Bisbee Soon to Award Contract for Construction--Estimated That the Smelter Will Cost $350,000.

Bisbee, Ariz., June 29.—A telegram has been received from Duluth by an official of the Shattuck-Arizona company stating that Directors E. H. Patton, Hill and Guthrie will come here at an early date for the purpose of passing upon the plans for the Shattuck smelter which it is to be erected at Douglas, and also for the purpose of awarding the contract for the construction work. The party will be accompanied by Prof. Winchell, the noted geologist for the Great Northern railroad, and also by a mining and smelter expert of national reputation. All the bids have been received by Supt. Patton and everything is ready for the opening of the bids and awarding the contract. It is estimated that the Shattuck smelter will cost approximately $350,000 when completed and in operation, and there is ample funds in the Shattuck treasury to complete and equip the smelter.

DEVELOPMENT AT MICHIGAN

Being Pushed to Secure Large Production When New Mill is Ready--Osceola and Tamarack Are Both Doing Well.

Houghton, Mich., June 29.—At the Michigan mine development work is being pushed with all possible speed, as it is desired to have the property in shape to supply a large production when the new mill goes into commission. Development work is confined largely to the eastern portion of the property, which is operated by means of C shaft. The showing on the Calico lode in this shaft surpasses that in the other two shafts. The crosscut is being driven from the 900-foot level of B shaft to C shaft. The new shaft and rock house at No. 1 lode on the La Salle company's Caldwell property is completed and in commission. Work on a similar structure at No. 2 shaft is rapidly nearing completion. The location presents a scene of activity and progress. The new mill is being completed rapidly, and the development work underground is going forward steadily, and the showing is satisfactory for the amount of work that has been accomplished. At the Osceola, another portion of the La Salle company's holdings, rock shipments are being maintained at a regular rate approximately of 150 tons a day. The rock is stamped at the Calumet & Hecla mills on Torch Lake.

THE BUTTE ORE PRODUCERS

Have Splendid Year--Total Output of Companies Aggregated $55,445,294, Greater Than in 1906, Although Tonnage Was Smaller--Increase Due to Higher Price of Copper.

Butte, Mont., June 29.—The mining companies of Butte did some mining during the year ended May 31, 1907, which fact is shown by the statements made by them to the county treasurer for tax on net proceeds. The figures show that the reporting companies mined 4,333,349 tons of ore, an average of 12,043 tons a day, the gross product of which aggregated $55,445,294, against $52,528,022 for the year ended May 31, 1906. The tonnage for the latter year was greater than for the year just closed, being 4,657,971 tons, an average of 12,241 tons a day. The decrease in tonnage last year can be attributed to the fact that last winter the companies had more difficulty in getting their ore hauls from the mines to the smelters than they did during the winter of 1906, but the Washoe being responsible for the trouble. The increase in the gross amount in dollars over the year ended May 31, 1906, is attributed to the increase in the price of copper. As to net proceeds, five of the subsidiary companies of the Amalgamated turned out $14,311,846, but the Washoe earnings were used in making improvements on the property. The net proceeds of the thirteen companies for the year, which does not represent by considerable the amount of money produced in the district: Anaconda $11,147,402.24; Boston & Montana 16,629,645.59; North Butte 4,576,965.59; Red Bull 2,011,531.84; Butte & Boston 2,011,531.84; Trenton 1,463,292.37; Washoe 1,362,048.00; La Salle 822,844.49; La France 482,844.49; Reins 419,000.00; Montana Lease 12,199.00. Total $55,445,294. The ore mined by smaller companies and individually is not reported. The following figures are an index as to what the various companies did during the year: Anaconda $5,839,134.62; Boston & Montana 3,271,211.67; North Butte 2,271,211.67; Red Bull 1,463,292.37; Butte & Boston 1,463,292.37; Trenton 1,463,292.37; Washoe 1,463,292.37; La Salle 1,463,292.37; La France 1,463,292.37; Reins 1,463,292.37; Montana Lease 1,463,292.37. Stylish Costume of Cloth

PLAIN WALKING SUITS

Plain tailored suits in light weight materials are almost a necessity in every young girl's outfit for the summer, and for those who contemplate vacation at even an inexpensive resort, such a costume will be most serviceable. A coat and skirt fashioned like the one in this picture will be stunning.

Light Weight Hats for the Children

STITCHED LINEN HAT FOR BEACH WEAR

Stitched linen and pique hats for small boys and girls are popular again this summer for wear on the beach, in the country and at mountain resorts.

and a pot of the "drip" variety is inexpensive. One may put in the coffee one's self and have the boiling water poured over in the kitchen.

Smart Styles in Parasols.

CHIFFON PARASOLS WITH LACE MEDALLIONS

PLEATED AND LACE BANDS ARE SMART

COCCA NUTS POLISHED MAKE ATTRACTIVE HANDLES FOR SILK SUNSHADES

Linon parasols will probably be carried more this summer than last year, the revival of the coat or blazer costume being responsible in a measure, as this kind of toilet should be completed with a sunshade only in keeping with it, anything fluffier being entirely out of place. Jumper dresses in such materials as gingham, galatea, or indeed any of the heavier wash goods, also call for this plainer style of parasol. Of course a little decoration is allowable, and one of the prettiest is a band of insertion embroidery about three inches wide set on about half way down. This is newer than the trimming at the edge or just above it, and could be added to a plain linen parasol by the merest amateur sewer. This would bring the price down nearly one-half, for decorated models are by no means cheap. Another ornamentation that is most effective could also be done at home by sewing a band of white glossy fibre braid directly on the edge outside, and then tie bow knots of the braid, applying one to each section above the band, connecting the knots with festoons of the braid. Considering the price and the labor involved few decorations can surpass this in effect. Lace medallions applied are too well known to need describing. A few rows of soutache braid, however, as an outline will be found a wonderful improvement.

The natural pongee sunshade has made its perennial appearance, and may be had unlined or with a lining in a contrasting color. For practical wear these have much to recommend them, the neutral tone harmonizing with almost any dress likely to be worn. For better wear taffeta is neither too plain nor too elaborate, and sunshades tucked or trimmed with knife pleated frills are to be had in all colors as well as black and white. White taffeta tucked and each tuck edged with a narrow black Val lace frill is very effective and will not show soil as quickly as though the frills were omitted.

A band of baby Irish lace about four inches wide bordering a white taffeta parasol, the silk cut away underneath, and a motif of the lace set into each section would be strikingly pretty. The same designer comes in black.

Butterflies in black Chantilly lace are seen alighting on a pink and black striped sunshade, soft pink chiffon ruffles forming the border. The pompadour parasols are visions of beauty, and are trimmed to carry out the effect of the gown and hat worn. Such concoctions, however, are for the few, but still women of moderate means need not despair of possessing such styles, for the cost of slightly above the average store prices for plain varieties.

way gives much individuality to the toilet, as, for instance, a parasol to match a pretty foulard gown trimmed with lace will be smart, and certainly within the limit of embroidering monograms on sunshades is absent this year, but otherwise there is no end of hand embroidery used. Carriage parasols are the daintiest affair imaginable, ivory taffeta entirely veiled with black Chantilly lace and trimmed with lace ruffles being the preferred model, and certainly nothing could possibly be in better taste. Colors are seen, but are not as smart as black and white. Even checks seem to be the popular covering for children's sunshades, the blocks varying in size from one-quarter of an inch to an inch square. The colors are old rose, various shades of blue, also brown, all blocked with cream, brown and blue is another combination and green and ivory a third. These will be the choice for misses to carry alighting on a pink and black striped sunshade, soft pink chiffon ruffles forming the border. Small girls will find their little china silk sun protectors in their usual dainty colorings, sometimes entirely covered with ruffles. At others just a border of the pinked frills, but pretty always. Then for the same small maidens tiny linen parasols are provided, both in white and colors, each section showing a bit of embroidery in English eyelet. A sunshade decorated at home in this effect.

A Pretty Summer Dress

CHECKED VOILE FOR SPRING

Plain and printed chiffons will be exceedingly smart for reception and afternoon frocks this spring. In light colors or in brown or black with broad trimmings to match such garments dressy of high enough for formal social functions, may be simply made. The costume on the figure in the picture taken from L'art de la Mode, is a stunning model for a tall, slender woman, for the skirt is long and hangs in graceful folds, while the waist—light or in brown or black with broad trimmings—is prettily decorated with bands of braid. The lace chemisette and high collar and the ruffles of lace at the wrists relieve the gown from any appearance of sombreness, even if the material is black or of a dark shade.

Smart Parisian Afternoon Costumes

These stylish frocks for afternoon and carriage wear are decidedly popular just now, and are made on lines that will become the average woman. The long lines of the other frock are especially graceful, the skirt is gored and full around the bottom and very long, while the jacket is little more than a vest trimmed with bands of taffeta or ribbon.

It is not always possible to have such work done instantly, even if one has money to afford it, but the question is easily solved if among odds and ends a flatiron has been stowed. Should there be gas or electric lights where one is staying an iron adapted to either may be used, but there should be no doubt first that either of these lighting agencies is in the place. An electric iron is used where only lamps are burned.

Quite independent of any lighting never is a woman with a charcoal fire. These are large, but not heavy, and are hollow, into an ovenlike receptacle are put hot coals or charcoal, and the iron heats itself.

If there are small children in the family a heating lamp of some kind is necessary, and one for oil, having one large tank, is cheap, can be bought in any country town and is satisfactory. Such a lamp will heat a flatiron and a maid then can wash all handkerchiefs and stockings. An alcohol lamp, while useful, heating a small quantity of water is inadequate for almost anything else. Coat hangers are among real necessities apt to be forgotten in the summer vacation, but their use will do much toward preserving the freshness of frocks as well as jackets, when dampness will make them into a string if merely hung upon loops.

Waste paper may seem too tritling to be important when going away, but its power to keep clothes fresh makes it worth buying. A bundle of it should be stowed in some place for wrapped about oranges and other thin things it will absorb dampness, enabling the dress to keep its crispness even in times of fog. There are out of door comforters to be taken by a family that is going to a country boarding house for the hot weather. Usually in such a place one or at most, two hammocks are provided and are always in use. As a rule, the owner of the place has not the least objection to others being put up, and to own one and have it swing in the precise place wished adds to pleasure as well as comfort. If there are children their summer is made much more joyous if they have a portable tent, built on the Indian fence order, not expensive to buy and still less so to make. It is an excellent place for them to play for a time in wet weather when their noses would disturb a house and such a toy is not difficult to make.

A particular woman to whom a cup of coffee in the morning means much does well to take with her on the summer outing a coffee pot and coffee for it. That morning dejection in the country is apt to leave much to be desired.

Flatiron and Small Stove Make Vacations Less Costly

Comfort, and not infrequently economy junct. For instance, there are times on a summer's trip is increased by a woman taking with her certain very weight in gold if a waist needs a little plain, but none the less serviceable ad-

Statistics often bring surprises. They often bring a person up sharply to a realization of the greatness of certain industries of which he has had formerly but a vague idea. Figures can usually be depended upon to tell the truth, but when one who has not paid much attention to the great shipping industry at the Head of the Lakes sees some statistics relating to that industry it is liable to give him a jolt.

HISTORICAL SIGNIFICANCE OF SOME OF FAMILIAR GEOGRAPHICAL NAMES

Minnesota Has Many Lakes and Towns With Indian Names. Others Are Named in Honor of the Early Settlers.

A List of the More Familiar Ones and Their Origin.

Minnesota abounds with lakes, rivers, counties and towns bearing Indian names. These names are usually more significant than people in general imagine, each one having some special meaning, that usually is quite appropriate to the locality in local history, tradition and folk lore than Minnesota, and all these places given by early pioneers, if placed in a list, would give room for interesting speculation.

"The overcomes," or "he surmounts obstacles." Chippewa, county, an Indian word probably the same as Chicago. The origin of the word Chicago is from the Indian, being a derivation of the Algonquian and French translation from the word Chi-caug-og. Col. Samuel A. Starbuck used the name in a letter to Gen. James Brown in 1812 as follows: "A Woman, Chicago (or in English 'Wild Onion river'). Schoolcraft in 1820 said: 'Its Indian name is 'shikaubikong,' meaning 'the wild spring of water.'"

EXPERIMENTAL FARMS IN NORTHERN WISCONSIN

What is Being Done at Iron River and Superior--Work at the General Experiment and Fruit Test Stations.

Iron River, Wis., June 28.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state of Wisconsin has three general experiment farms, and two fruit farms in the northern part of the state. The general farms are located at Iron River, Superior and Ashland. The fruit farms are near Haystack in the state fish hatchery, the other on Madeline Island. These farms were established in the spring of 1906.

carried on in the cultivation of small fruits, potatoes and beans. An acre of strawberries was planted this spring, and about a half acre of raspberries. The strawberries are growing very rapidly, and the raspberries are doing well. Last year about four acres of potatoes were planted and the yield was exceptionally fine and large. On some parts of the ground the yield was more than 200 bushels per acre. In spite of the fact that nearly all of the work was done by high priced hand labor, the potato crop gave a profit to the state.

being carried on with various grains, clovers and other leguminous plants, and with sugar beets. Thirty-seven different strains of medium red clover were sown this spring for the purpose of determining their relative values as seed producers. A clover huller has been purchased for the farm to be used on the farm and around the same lines as at Iron River with similar ends in view. But at these places the soils are heavy clay and the purposes of the experiments are to determine the most valuable fertilizers for crops best adapted to these soils. Clovers of all kinds grow most abundantly on the clay.

"Proportional Representation," by Professor J. R. Commons. "The Comedy of Life," "Responsibilities of Citizenship," by Secretary of State Root.

The Macmillan company has just published a new edition of "Proportional Representation," by Prof. John R. Commons of the University of Wisconsin. The author points out in his preface that the principal events in the history of proportional representation since the publication of the first edition have been the adoption of the system in Belgium, the election of the national legislatures. The book is intended to show the historical development of the reform and a detailed application of the reform to American politics.

The American citizen of a century ago derives his name from the "Comedy of Life," would find it pictorially and otherwise a very vivid picture of the life that he and his ancestors more than three generations removed—lived before he was ever born. The author, who is a student of the history of the United States, has written a book which is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It is a book that every citizen should read, for it tells the story of the life of the American people from the time of the first settlers to the present day.

A reviewer has spoken of Ellis Parker Butler's new book, "The Great American Pie Company," as an "intellectual Dutch treat." The point of view is that the book is a masterpiece of research and scholarship. It is a book that every citizen should read, for it tells the story of the life of the American people from the time of the first settlers to the present day.

Among the Magazines

The July Century is a "Fiction Number," with fiction enough to satisfy the most voracious reader. It contains a number of short stories, chiefly by popular writers. Mrs. Frances Elizabeth Robins' "Come and Find Me" is a long short story of a fascinating fellow's multicolored life. Underwood, Thomas Nelson Page contributes a story of life on the Maine coast, full of character, humor and pathos, entitled "Leader's Light." This has an illustration in full color by Schoonover. There is another of L. Frank Underwood's rollicking Kerrigan stories, "The Freedom City," and a novel by H. H. Harker, a Parisian cafe setting, "The Magie Lantern." Another of the authors of fiction are Florence Mosola Riss, Elizabeth Moorhead, Mary Austin, Dorothy Mackin and Emma Ghent Curtis. Of these three are debutantes, at least so far as The Century is concerned. Elizabeth Moorhead with a penetrating portrayal of two women and a physicalist, "The Standstill," and a feminine story, "Mrs. Curtis with a Romantic and altogether masculine Western story, "The Adventure." In "The Dark of the Moon," with a picture by Wreth, and Miss Riss' story, "The Blood of Vikings," Mrs. Austin's mining story, "The Hoodoo of the Minnesota," also relates to the West. Charles Battell Loomis has a merry account of "The Next Adventure," Mr. Putnam gives Maine with all its dangers.

fore the areas not tilled, and the crops on these areas are growing much more rapidly than on the other areas. At Superior, this is the second year's experiment, the tilling having been laid there in the fall of 1906.

Rotation is Established. On all of the general farms a regular rotation is being established—small grain, clover, and a cultivated crop. The present plan is for a four-year rotation, but it may be changed to a three-year, or even two-year rotation. On all of the farms nearly all crops are well advanced in spite of the lateness of the season. According to reports, nearly all crops here are as far advanced as similar crops in Southern Wisconsin.

The state has a ten-acre orchard at the fish hatchery, near Haystack, and a five-acre orchard on Madeline Island. The trees in the orchards are hardy varieties of apple, cherry and plum. The purpose of the experiments on both these farms is to find the best varieties for commercial purposes adapted to the existing climate and conditions. There is also a small orchard on the farm at Superior, the purpose of which is to determine the varieties best adapted to farm use, that will thrive here.

In addition to the experimental work the state contemplates giving the farms to farmers. Work along this line was begun last winter. Supt. Delwiche held a number of meetings for farmers at various places in the state, where he explained the work. He expects to extend the work next winter.

ing the reader absorbed even on the hottest summer's day, together with a serial, "The Lion's Share," written by only "Octave Thanet," and a brilliant study of the poet's friend and biographer, Prof. Edwin Mims of Trinity college, Durham, N. C., summarizing the life and writings of that versatile and charming Southern man of letters, Thomas Nelson Page.

The second article in the section on Chamberlain's "Cough Remedy" is a graphic personal sketch of ex-Senator Charles H. Chamberlain, by William Inglis, special correspondent of the weekly, to the present best of our knowledge, the most interesting expression by Senator Chamberlain himself of his views on vital Democratic issues. This number is a very interesting and entertaining article on the absurdities and peculiarities of the dramatic censorship in England. Capt. M. Stewart has been for some time referred to as an ideal democrat in politics, and this article is a series of incidents prepared by Robert Lee Dunn, who as a campaign photographer, accompanied Mr. Roosevelt on many of his trips, shows how unaffected democratic spirit that has made him the most popular man that ever occupied the White House. Various efforts that have been made from time to time, by noted swimmers, to swim the English channel, are touched upon by W. G. Fitz-Gerald in his article, "An Eighteen Hours Swim."

The July McClure's is unique in the fact that it contains six of them and a more interesting issue of any magazine would be hard to find. Will the American Fly to the Pole? by Walter Wellman is a fairy story of reality—and graphically describes his assurance that he will be the first to reach the pole. "The Story of the Other Wise Man," by Henry Van Dyke, has already been translated into many foreign languages. The story is set in Turkey, and last week the publisher of the book, the American Book Company, received an application from India, for permission to translate it into Bengali.

A description of the manufacturing methods of furniture company of some prominence engaged in the making of desks, sectional bookcases and filing devices, freely illustrated in Wood Craft for July. An outdoor American sends from abroad a first-hand criticism of the future and also furnishes some suggestive ideas for peculiarities and improvements and explains the making of a curved edge stove column. There's a thorough-going enumeration of the essential items required in the mental make-up of a progressive patternmaker and there are some very interesting bits of news which in our judgment are well worth a read.

Variety of the topic sufficient to suit all tastes is characteristic of the World Today at all times, and the July number is no exception. As usual also, the illustrations in this 15-cent magazine are numerous and good. The timeliness of the subjects treated is noticeable in the graphic description by William H. Thomson of "San Francisco's Struggle with Graft," and the account by James Linn Nash of "The Farmers' Movement," the new organization which is already proving successful in controlling the prices paid for agricultural products. The report of an eye-witness, Samuel L. Carter, on the work of "Russia's Second Duma," and the character of the parties contending in the struggle for power, are also interesting. So does the article on "Our Hopes," by Charles Morau, which is a study of the mental control for the purpose of the water of interstate rivers.

The July number of the New England Magazine is even more vigorous, persuasive and entertaining than the issue of the previous month. It is off with a new series by Frank Putnam on the general topic, "What's the Matter With New England?" The first installment is "Maine, a Study in Land Grabbing, Fix Dooding and Isolationism." Mr. Putnam gives Maine what a New Englander would call "a good going over," as to its political and industrial conditions. He finds many things to praise in the state as well, and the whole article is one which is eminently calculated to make Maine men sit up and take notice.

"On the Trail of Roger Williams," a series of six drawings by Whitman Harris of the various spots in and around Providence which are made memorable historically by the presence of Roger Williams, founder of the city.

"How I Saw the Monitor-Merrimack Fight," by Joseph McDonald. The vivid tale of an eye witness to the great fight which revolutionized navies and helped turn the rising tide of the Civil war. This is of particular interest now that the Jamestown exposition is in full swing.

In Uncle Remus's Magazine for July, of which Joel Chandler Harris is editor, the department devoted to literary criticism is of unusual interest. Anne Macfarland, Mrs. Dundy (L. H.) Harris and William Cole Jones have contributed notable articles to the current number, articles which approach the quality of the best literary criticism. From these articles we can recall that, notwithstanding we can recall the names of the contributors, the quality of the criticism is of a high order. From these articles or essays, one may be able to make a close and accurate estimate of the merit of the books discussed. The breadth of view regarding general standards to be observed in literary efforts.

Journalistic timeliness and well condensed variety characterize the July issue of the Atlantic, though stress is laid particularly on government and politics. "The Power of the Press for Peace" by President H. S. Pritchett of the Institute of Technology, we have a singularly vigorous and penetrating article, and in Samuel P. Orth's "Government by Impulse," an essay in which, among other things, Arthur A. Hourwich deals impressively with the tremendous forces for good and for evil in the Russian Revolution. There is "David Spencer's" account of the recent school reform in Boston, which all the world is to be a permanent administrative success. There are three literary essays of note, Edward Dowden's "Copper and William Hayley" and a brilliant study of the poet's friend and biographer, Prof. Edwin Mims of Trinity college, Durham, N. C., summarizing the life and writings of that versatile and charming Southern man of letters, Thomas Nelson Page.

Chancellor James R. Day of Syracuse University, the recognized stoutest champion of "trusts" and the chief industry in their hour of trouble, replies in the July issue of the New Yorker magazine to the article by Frank H. Giddings in the July number in which the eminent sociologist attacked the great educational trust funds established by Rockefeller and Carnegie were dangerous and directly contrary to our constitutional principle of free markets and estates in perpetuity. Chancellor Day sets the fullest measure of public utility in the trust funds and has no patience with men who, in account of gauging everything by present and past experience, the slow and choker American citizen of the future. In "What the States Have Done to the Railroads," Freeman Tilden of the editorial staff of the New York Evening Post makes very interesting reading by his intersection of comment, a carefully gathered volume of state legislation passed this year restricting and regulating the railroad and public utility corporations.

The average man cannot afford to employ a physician for every slight ailment. Hence every man must from necessity be able to take such reliable remedies as Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Chamberlain's Salve for diseases of the skin. Paris has been severely jarred by the declaration recently made by a newspaper that the statues of generals and marshals of the period of the Revolution and the First Empire, displayed at Versailles, are forgeries. The story is that when Louis Philippe, the "Citizen King," determined to abolish the palace at Versailles to the glorious memories of France, he decided to do it on an economical plan, says the New York Sun.

He made a visit to a dealer in second hand statuary in the hopes of finding in the collection figures of some of the heroes whom he wanted to honor. Instead, he found nothing but second rates—generals of brigades and divisions that nobody ever heard of, such as Colbert, Despaigues and Rousset. This was a sad disappointment, but the king had a bright idea. The statues were all more or less correctly carved, and there seemed to be no reason why the bodies should not be made of granite heroes as well as second rate ones. The king bought the whole lot on the condition that they would be delivered with the heads newly sawed off. Then he set some sculptors to work to chisel out the heads, and the result was a set of great men like Massena, Lannes, Jourdan and Soult and these he had newly made. The king then had the appropriate names carved beneath them, placed in the Court of Honor, where they have fooled more than two generations of Frenchmen and tourists.

WESTERN STAGELAND

AT THE LYCEUM

Lew Dockett With His Big Minstrel Troupe of Seventy-five People, Will Appear in Duluth Next Saturday for Two Performances Only.

It is not generally known to the lay public, but the fact remains that there is a great antipathy among theatrical performers to the long trip that leads west from Denver. In the East the towns are comparatively close together, but there is a dearth of cities between Denver and the Pacific coast, with the exception of Ogden and Salt Lake City, which affords a remunerative field for big theatrical ventures. The consequence is that the railroad jumps are very long and tiresome. This state of affairs has had the effect of making the average performer a bit skittish of the Far West. He believes that if he can get profitable employment in the East he will do away with the tiresome travel. Therefore, the first question he is asking a manager who is anxious to obtain his services, is: "Do you play West of Denver?" Nine times out of ten on being answered in the affirmative, the Thespian claps on his hat and walks out to seek some Eastern enterprise. This condition has been the direct cause of Lew Dockett not having been seen with his minstrel company further west than Denver for the past six years. When Mr. Dockett organized his own show he did it on a scale that has never been approached for magnificence and expense. He promised in his advance notices that he would bring an entertainment that had never been duplicated and he made good. He found, however, that with the high-salaried people he had engaged, he could not go to the Western coast, as they, with few exceptions, stipulated that they would not have to play west of Denver. Contrary to the methods used by some unscrupulous managers, who do not seem to care what kind of a curtailed troupe they appear in the Far West with, Mr. Dockett put his foot down firmly. "No," said he, "I've organized this entertainment, and the critics and public everywhere are delighted with it. I'm going to have my show the very best, and if I can't get these people to go West then I'll devote myself to the East where I can be sure of their services." The consequence has been that for the past six years Mr. Dockett and his minstrel company have not been seen west of Denver—every season presenting the same perplexing problem as the foregoing. All during this time, however, the minstrel was in daily receipt of letters from Western admirers asking him why he persisted in refusing to play in their territory. To all these he had the same response—the truth as stated above. This season the requests for his appearance in the Far West have increased to such an extent that the minstrel has changed his mind. By dint of a substantial raise in salaries and such thorough railroad arrangements as will guarantee a condition approaching luxury to his company while traveling, he has induced every man to stand by his post and made the trip west from Denver. The minstrel looks forward with much zest to the coming season, and he has not been able to shake hands with for six years, and they in turn by letters and telegrams, have asured him of their heartfelt support and co-operation toward making the trip as one of the most successful ever experienced by a theatrical organization.

AT THE BIJOU

Week of the Fourth of July Will Witness an Exceptionally Strong Vaudeville Bill Including Several Clever Comedy Sketches.

If good shows count for anything the bill at the Bijou for next week should pack the theater at every performance. James B. Donovan and Lena Arnold, two of the best known artists on the vaudeville stage, will present a comedy act, where originally is displayed, both in comedy and song. The skit presented is entitled "Doing Well, Thank You." A feature act will be that offered by Sampson and Zaehle. They are recognized as the strongest man and woman in the world, and their feats of strength are said to be marvelous. A clever comedy stunt will be offered by the well known comedians, Ross McKee and Ernest Van, who do a line of blackface comedy singing and expert dancing, that is good to hear and see. A beautiful rural comedy will be presented by The Harris-Bearsards Co., entitled "The Country Judge." A full and complete set of scenery is carried for the act.

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO

Festive Roof Garden Now Flourishes—Southern and Marlowe Say They Will Tackle London Again --Hackett is a Busy Prospector.

New York, June 28.—Four roof gardens, a couple of opera companies, very few long-run plays which have not yet closed, the vaudeville houses, and last, but not least, the beach resorts, constitute New York's midsummer amusement assets, and the people seem to be getting along pretty well, thank you, while the nummers who can afford it take a well-earned season of rest. The closing of the engagement of E. H. Southern and Julia Marlowe last Saturday night at the Academy of Music was not because the people of New York were tired of seeing these sterling plays, for even the hot weather had little or no effect on the crowds which gathered at every performance in the big Fourteenth Street Auditorium, and the management was anxious for the engagement to be extended. But Mr. Southern and Miss Marlowe concluded that they had earned a rest and were anxious to take it.

THE KING OF THEM ALL. Lew Dockett, Veteran Minstrel, Who Will Be at the Lyceum Next Saturday.

Hamlet's head and is willing to pay $500 for the vandal who cut it out of the framed picture at the Lyceum theater. With other impersonations painted by artists of high degree, it stood in the lobby of the Lyceum, and some miscreant stole it. If he is ever found and Mr. Sothen has his will, and some miscreant stole it. If he is ever found and Mr. Sothen has his will, and some miscreant stole it. If he is ever found and Mr. Sothen has his will, and some miscreant stole it.

James K. Hackett is off for Europe. He sailed on the Carmania for London to complete arrangements for next season. He will meet Alfred Sutra, author of "John Gayde's Honor," which is being played at the St. James' theater. This is the piece in which Mr. Hackett will appear next season, opening in November in Milwaukee, later in the season coming to the Hackett theater. Here he will follow the engagement of Miss Manning, his wife in "Glorious Betsy," a comedy of Rida Johnson Young, in which Miss Manning appeared last season in the West. Mr. Hackett will also appear at his theater next season in a romantic comedy called "Mr. George," which is being played in London by Charles Hawtry.

With a record of more than 60 performances in New York to its credit, "The Lion and the Mouse" recently left the Lyceum theater and is back in another house, the Hudson, the home theater of its producer, Henry B. Harris. I hear encouraging news from Herr Henrick Conrad. He is now at Bad Naimburg taking the cure, and I understand is making very satisfactory progress toward recovery. Mrs. Helen Noid, called by her press as the greatest of America's dramatic sopranos (that's what she says him for), appeared this week with the West End Opera company, "Cavalleria Rusticana."

Miss Ellaine Von Solover, who has been appearing with "His Honor the Mayor" as a chorus girl, will next season sing, act, talk and walk the role that was played this season by Miss Nellie Minto. It is well known that David Belasco is very cheerful when a coaxing photographer endeavors to persuade him to sit for the picture. The result of his huge red automobile has been continually pursued by enterprising artists from magazines and newspapers who wanted contrast to what story books and plays lead us to believe is the case. The words of the chorus of "The Subway Express" are clever enough to bear repetition even without the catchy music to which they are set. "We first met down at Spring street, And then upon my darling's face, I felt I'd known you all my life. When we reached twenty-third, I proposed to you at Hartien, In the Bronx you murmured 'Yes,' We lost no time, On the Subway Express!"

Ernie Ellsler, long star of wide-spread popularity and best known to playgoers as the original Hazel Strike, has been captivated by the vaudeville allurements. Miss Ellsler will take a trip over the Keith-Tractor circuit, dramatic play in one act, called "His Woman." It was written by New York newspaper man, Miss Ellsler will be supported by her husband, Frank Weston, who has long played with her.

Nothing daunted by "Mrs. Warren's Profession" it is reported that Mary Shaw will start next season in another play, "The Good Girl," based upon the dramatic play in one act, called "His Woman." It was written by New York newspaper man, Miss Ellsler will be supported by her husband, Frank Weston, who has long played with her.

SPECIAL ENGAGEMENT, SUNDAY ONLY

Miss Nellie Minto, Prima Donna Soprano, Will Sing Afternoon and Evening With Flanigan's Band.

Olga Netherese may possibly have a new play next season in "Archie," which is now being written at her suggestion by Pauline Chesnut, who is based upon the story that she immediately suggested to Mendis during her special engagement in Paris, and that he was induced to make a play for her use at the earliest possible date. The only dramatic offering by this gifted French writer essayed in this country was his play "Queen Flaminia," which Julia Marlowe produced in Boston and which was a failure for some reason or other.

When Pauline Chase was picked out of the chorus in the "Liberty Bells," a few seasons back, and given a nite of a part as the pink pajama girl, her delicacy in handling that rough job, attracted the attention of one of the best known actors on the American stage, and it may not be generally known, but an effort was then made to have Miss Chase become a member of that player's company with a view of developing her art. Recently Miss Chase played Peter Pan in London in a manner so delightful and attractive that Manager Frohman has nipped out a brilliant future for her in London. She is soon to be the star of "Jenny and Her Mother," a comedy adaptation from the French, which is said to be a most pleasing stage story. Looks as if the American actor's judgment is being pretty thoroughly vindicated.

Edna Wallace Hopper has spurned all sorts of vaudeville offerings and now is added to the fold of Cohan and Harris stars. She is booked to join George M. Cohan's "Fifty Miles from Boston" shortly as the star for next season, after which she is to have a play written especially for her by George M. Cohan.

The marriage of Minnie Seligman to her leading man, William Bramwell, last week was a real romance of the theater. It is said that the happy couple will spend their honeymoon in vaudeville, appearing jointly in a new one-act play they have been rehearsing. The marriage recalls the former matrimonial venture of the bride, who became the wife of Robert L. Cutting, Jr., in the days when she was the leading lady of the distinguished Bijou Stock company. Young Cutting was a number of the 40 in New York and was disinclined for marrying the actress. They afterward starred in a play written for them which was not successful. Nether was their matrimonial venture, and a divorce subsequently granted Cutting about six years ago.

Sam Bernard is said to be considering the most flattering vaudeville offer ever made a star in this country. It is a matter of common gossip that the German

SEED OF THE FATHERS IN THESE MODERN DAYS

Descendants of More Than Two-Thirds of Those Who Signed the Declaration of Independence, 131 Years Ago, and so Made the Fourth of July a National Holiday, Have Been Prominent in the History of the Nation.

By DEXTER MARSHALL.

(Copyright, 1907, by Dexter Marshall)
Fifty-five names were signed to the document known as the Declaration of Independence, the anniversary of whose adoption, in 1776, will be celebrated with much noise and fire on Thursday next.

Not only do these fifty-five names stand for fifty-five personalities of unusual strength and distinction, but the descendants of more than two-thirds of them have distinguished themselves sufficiently on their own account in the 131 years since the first Fourth of July to warrant attention in the standard biographical works of the day.

and he sailed the boat which won the Kaiser's yacht race prize last year. The sons of Charles Francis, Jack and Harry, the "Adams Twins," are solid chaps of about 30. John is looking after his father's interests in the West, while Henry is interested in a big ranch in the Pacific Northwest. The Adamses are descended from presidents as well as from signers, their family being one of two which has given the country two first magistrates, John Adams being the second president and John Quincy Adams the sixth. The best known members of the Harrison family, which also has furnished two presidents—William Henry Harrison, the ninth, and Benjamin, the twenty-third—are Russell B. Harrison, son of Benjamin Harrison, and George Paul Harrison,

CHARLES JACKSON PAINE.
From a Photograph Taken When He Was the Chief Defender of the America's Cup and Famous as a Yachtsman.

Samuel Adams have been prominent in every generation. Charles Francis Adams, best known member of the family at this time, is a veteran of the Civil war, in which he won the brevet rank of brigadier general. He has written several works of value, he has made his mark on the railway development of the country, having served as president of the Union Pacific for some years, and he was long a member of the Massachusetts railroad commission. At 72 he is well entitled to take life easy.

George Adams, his nephew, has been mayor of Quincy, Mass.; is now treasurer of Harvard university—a very big position in New England—

Lee, himself a signer's descendant, but was honorably discharged in a way that made his friends call for vindication. He did not study law until after that, and his legal preceptor was the late W. H. H. Miller, Benjamin Harrison's attorney general. R. B. Harrison is in the neighborhood of 40.

Gerry, Many-Sided Descendant.
Prominent as the Adams and Harrison families have been in the history of the country, their present representations, perhaps, are not the most interesting of those now well known whose veins carry signers' blood. Elbridge T. Gerry, famous descendant of Elbridge Gerry, who was not only a signer, but also vice president under Monroe, has been a most interesting personality for more than thirty years, not altogether because he is a multi-millionaire, and not at all because of any rapid rise to wealth on his part. The Gerrys, like the Astors and the Golets, have been rich for generations, simply by the accumulation of the "unearned increment" from their land holdings on Manhattan Island, in colonial days, wherefora, as a Gerry intimate said the other day, "no member of the family has had to do a lick of work for two or three generations."

There were working Gerrys, of course, while the family fortune was being built up, and Elbridge T. has never been an idler, but this work has been done on principle and not for pay. The life of Commodore Gerry (commodore because of his fondness for pleasure yachting) has been more of a credit to him than the lives of most men of his class. In the half century since he was graduated from Columbia college he has been about as active as the next one.

He started out to practice law, and appears to have been a good lawyer for a youngster so long as he stuck to the job. His attention was drawn to the lack of laws for the prevention of cruelty to children while he was the attorney of Henry Bergh's Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and in 1874 he brought about the formation of the so-called "Gerry Society," which has made him even more famous than his dad of wearing a cap-blue cloth in the summer, sealskin in the winter—on every and all occasions. He made more enemies as the head of the S. C. C. perhaps than through any other of his several activities, because of his continuous "crusade" for years against the employment of children on the stage.

Most of these enemies have been the parents and managers of the children barred from performing, and there may have been cases in which wrong has been done, but on the whole the work of the society has been of great benefit. Take the case of Josef Hofman, for instance. In 1887, or a year later, when a lad of 13, this pianist, then a child "prodigy," came to this country to give exhibitions of his skill in the Metropolitan opera house under the direction of Henry E. Abbey, grand opera impresario long before Corried or Hammerstein. The boy was a wonder and his parents began to reap a harvest of shokels; then Gerry swooped down upon the outfit. There was a dreadful outcry, it being held generally that the boy's playing these or four evenings a week could not harm him since, evidently, he enjoyed it hugely, and that it would be a shame to prevent his making hay while the sun shone.

After a full investigation Gerry agreed to young Hofman's continuing, Abbey having promised not to give Hofman entertainments more than half the evenings in any week. The boy's parents appeared satisfied with this arrangement, but soon began making engagements for the boy to play at private houses on the off nights, and Gerry again swooped down upon them. The doctors examined the boy and said he must have rest. Gerry then decreed that young Hofman couldn't appear at all. The musical people, the fashionables, the sticklers for individual rights and some of the newspapers got red in the face and there was a big rumpus, but, having the law and the evidence on his side, Gerry triumphed, and the boy had to leave the stage.

As soon as the commodore had won his point beyond peradventure he told the Hofmans that a "rich friend" of his, whose name could not be made known would take pleasure in paying all Josef's expenses for a thorough musil training. The Hofmans agreed to that. Josef was accepted as a pupil by Rubinstein and remained with that master of the piano until his death. Today Hofman is one of the world's greatest pianists, mainly, perhaps, because of Gerry's liberality—for no one ever doubted that the "rich friend" was the commodore himself.

He was the real prime mover in the substitution of the electric current for the hangerman's noose for execution purposes in New York state, Nathan Hale and A. P. Southwick being members with him of the commission to reform the state capital punishment law. While making the investigations that led up to the change the commodore learned more about electricity than some professional experts learn in a lifetime. At 79 Commodore Gerry is much richer than most folk suppose. He has nine-tenths of the growth of New York city, since he was born away down Broadway on the site of the present Standard Oil building, at No. 25, close by Bowling Green and the Battery. His mother was a Golet and his wife a Livingston, descended from R. R. Livingston, himself one of the signers. The Gerrys have two sons and two daughters. The latter are still single; the sons are great coaching men and cross-country riders.

The Gerry house on Fifth avenue is the best furnished in New York, say experts, but its glories have never been described in print. It contains the finest private law library of 30,000 volumes, in America. Gerry's yacht, the Electra, cost nearly a million; it outclassed all others in America when new and is still one of the finest afloat. One of the commodore's greatest weaknesses is the fine cooking in his kitchen and the rarity of foods served on his table. He was delegate to one state constitutional convention, and might have been a big politician in the days when being very rich didn't prevent success in politics; but he has never cared to use his political ability on behalf of anything but his beloved society.

Everything considered, he's a pretty good citizen, although it is true that he makes Newport—where, like most of his class, he has a summer home—his legal residence, and doesn't pay personal Dashing Gertrude Atherton.

More interesting than any mere man descended from a signer is Gertrude Franklin Horn Atherton, to give the full name of this dashing Californian-born authoress. It may be stretching the point a little, perhaps, to include her in the list, since she is descended from a brother of the famous Benjamin and not from the signer himself, but she has made enough stir in the world since her husband's death in the '90s to excuse her being let in. Her grandfather was Stephen Franklin, who established the first newspaper in San Francisco. Her mother, Gertrude Franklin, married Thomas L. Horn, or Uhorn. He was a bookkeeper of the park. Its members were "too Puritanical," she thought, and although she wouldn't drink wine at dinner, she would shock them sometimes by smoking cigarettes. Besides, she was constantly talking about her dream of some day becoming a great success in literature. Why any one who had money already should want to write, they couldn't understand.

Her husband went away on a trip to South America after they had been married a year or two, leaving her alone with the Menlo Park "Puritans." Owing to his "pull" as a rich society man he voyaged on a warship. He wrote to her weekly for a while. One week no letter came, but in its place a cask, evidently containing liquor of some kind, was delivered at the house. The cask was opened and found to contain his body. He had died where there were no embalming facilities, and the liquor had been used as a preservative. For some reason she had not been notified of his death.

There were plenty of reasons in her opinion why she should no longer dwell at Menlo Park, and she hastened to establish herself in San Francisco with whose dust the Menlo Park folk would not contaminate their shoe-soles and where she began to fight her literary way. That was not a Herculean task, seeing that she was really clever as well as rich. She thought it tremendously long and tiresome, however, but she persevered as persistently as she could have done, had she been dependent upon her pen for a living.

About the first thing she had to do was to learn the typewriter, her handwriting being so bad that no one could read it. Much of her early writing was done for the Argonaut. Most of her characters were drawn from the Menlo Park set, who, as depicted by her, were more hypocritical than Puritanical, after all. So caustic were her portrayals that nobody in San Francisco would buy her early books, and, to this day, the volumes do not sell there. Nor will many San Francisco literary critics give much space to them, although one did go far enough a few years ago to mention her uppopularity on the coast and its cause, by saying that "Mrs. Atherton has written many a 'great amateur whip' and he saw things regarding our social life which hung proved far from congenial to the majority of her California readers."

She holds that it was because "her own people" would have none of her books, as she frankly said, that she and other members of the "aristocracy" made only $12 on the "Doomswoman,"

SPORTS WITH THE SPORTING WORD

By Naughton and the Sporting Scribe.

The Race as It Goes.
Well, we're still behind, but running strong and the race isn't over yet. The fans must be pretty well satisfied with that team as it is just now. The Peggars are galloping along at a merry clip and keeping even at least, but the Sox are going well and there's a chance to catch the leaders before the stretch and beat them to the wire.

Five out of eight from Calumet isn't bad, while the Maroons were taking a few beatings from Houghton and giving a few in return. Those Artcrafts aren't weaklings by any means. Roy Newcombe has a good, compact, fighting ball team in the race right now even though they are hanging on to the bottom rung of the aggregation, which doesn't mark them as tail-enders yet and they gave the Sox a pretty close call.

Incidentally, Percy Solbra's Giants are so reckoned with as factors. The way they made the Peggars open their eyes and play ball every minute, is evidence that the Sox aren't going to walk off with the present series without a fight. Not much. Those Giants are all there every minute and if the Sox are going to get the big end of the series, there must be no off day.

Wouldn't it be nice if the Smith contingent would get off the big end and be in good fighting trim for the Maroons next week? There's a nice bunch of short lengthy session of good support.

Are They Over the Limit?
The Maroons still lead in the race, with little danger of being headed for some days to come. Houghton gave them a scare, but they're not on the toboggan by any means. They are playing good ball. You must give them that.
But there's also a salary limit is getting to be a joke. Taking Winnipeg as the dining example, there's nobody with ordinary reasoning powers who would suggest that that outfit is working for $1,000 a month. Not much. In their contracts may call for that amount, but it's an auto to a broken-down tricycle, that Mr. Lamb is handling out a little of the sum that makes the British empire go round, on the side.

Winnipeg's four pitchers, Terry, Glencoe, Sawyer and Bushelman are high priced men. Crisp, Luderus, Zelder, Piper and Co. aren't working for $600 a month by any means, and the other boys are getting more than that. It's not quite so certain. Just where $1,000 can be divided among that bunch with satisfaction to all, is not quite clear.

What's the use in having a salary limit, anyway? Every one working for $600 a month over it last year and it's doubtful if any of them are under it this season. The Copper country can't even support $1,000 ball and Duluth and Winnipeg might support $2,000 teams. That's the incongruity of this freak organization. But if it's to be $1,000 ball, it should be of that class. It isn't fair to the owners who can't put up more money for their clubs. Winnipeg may not be over the limit, but there's a great many people who would have to be shown before they would accept the bare statement as incontrovertible fact.

Poor Mike Schreck.
Mike Schreck is the prize hard-luck fighter. He no sooner had shaken the hoodoo, which prevented his securing matches, than he butted into another. In his recent fight with Marvin Hart, he injured his hands so badly that he will be kept out of the game for months to come.

It's hard luck for Mike. His victory over John White made him a favorite with some of the championship honors and he was counting on a good fight for July 4, so that he might be in line for a match with the winner of the Burns-Squires bout. Now Mike will be compelled to rest and it may be that when he comes forward again, the old hoodoo will be back to keep him out of his pockets. Everybody else is fighting away and he is in line for the Fourth of July match should turn him down, it will be back to work for the German.

An Angler Defined.
The following is not from a Boston paper, although it reads very Bostonese. A writer on the Brookline Eagle is responsible and it's good aside from the fact that it appeared on the sporting page.
The angler has one great advantage over any and all other sportsmen. He can, as a rule, at less cost, than those who prefer shooting, hunting, fishing, or any of the other open air recreations. Some of the sportsman from the farmer and the yachtsman from the angler.
There is no commercial side to the fishing. It is a dignified, gentle sport, generally indulged in by those who have money and waters and who enjoy a day with rod and line without regard to the size of the catch.
Poets, artists and naturalists are born anglers, and the nature lover who takes to the woods for health and recreation soon becomes an ardent angler. The song of the reed, the dainty swish of the line, the graceful curves of the leader as the fish heaves for an instant over the clear cool stream and then light as delicately as a zephyr carries on its wings, and they don't get it, but they do get discipline and the errors of judgment are forgiven.

him away, the fight fans will be satisfied that the man from Kangaroo land is no false alarm.
And there are a good many people who would be satisfied to see the big fellow from Australia turn the trick. Burns hasn't anything coming on the score of patriotism. He is generally regarded as a Canadian, so he cannot call over Americans to support him as an American. If the heavy-weight championship is going outside of the United States, it may as well go to an Australian as to a Canadian.
But leaving the nationality out of the question, a good whipping would do Tommy Burns a lot of good. Since the accident, which gave him the title of champion, he has been parading around the country with an air, which Jeffries might not affect without bringing criticism on his head. But the fact that Jack O'Brien put the finishing touches to the disappearance of Burns' winning popularity. Anything suggestive of fake is more than the American public can stand. Squires appears to be a clean-cut sort of a fellow, who is in the game because he likes it and is ambitious for success by fair methods. If he puts over the exciting jab on the fair form of Thomas Burns, there will be few tears shed and Tommy may retire into oblivion.

Nelson-Britt Fight.
It looks as though the Nelson-Britt joke fight were really coming off the night of the 29th. Nelson, described as a magnificently covered man with a nose tissue, and Britt, entirely out of the game because he is in Australia, will be placed into the ring to create disgust in the minds of anybody who is so gullible as to hand over the price to see the

But it must be conceded that Stuart was a great hockey player. It is claimed for him that he was the greatest defensive man who ever handled a stick and there are a few who would not admit that he had a right to the title. Others may have the honor of introducing professional hockey into the United States, but in the ranks of those who do the most interesting and popularizing it, Stuart's name is well to the front. He was a great player and a great general and his death is a well-merited irreparable loss to the hockey world.
The Split Ball Again.
Now and then from some one high up in the baseball world comes a protest against the spit ball. Muggsy McGraw has declared it the rotation of pitchers and will not allow one of his twirlers to use it even in practice. Now comes Fielder Jones with the declaration that the umpire should be instructed to call a ball every time the pitcher throws a spitter.
The rule is suggested by the leader of the world's champions may not be the best possible, but there's some

Wouldn't It Be Nice?
ends saved up in Smith's grip to hand out to the chesty Canadians and they will be turned over next week if possible. Eleven games played with the Maroons and eight of them lost is a fact that's rankling terribly in the hearts of the Duluth City fans and if Smith's men can slip over a big bunch on the Herries next week, there'll be nothing too good in Duluth for Smith and his gang.

This four-team, grasshopper circuit may be a joke, but there are no joke ball teams in it right now. From the tail-enders to the leaders, they're playing baseball of the right sort.

Smith & Co. have something coming from the fans in Duluth. That's a nice speeches from the players on the dimness of his eyesight or the fallacy of his judgment. He kept them right on the go all the time and the fans didn't have an idle moment. That's the kind of a baseball we want to see. Squires is appreciated. They don't expect a zephyr to carry on its wings, and they don't get it, but they do get discipline and the errors of judgment are forgiven.

Squires-Burns Fight.
Next Thursday's American fight world will be given its first impression of the true worth of Boomer Bill Squires. Then the hoodoo will be broken against Tommy Burns, near-champion heavyweight of the world in the first try-out of the Australian since he landed in this country. Squires is a clean-cut sort of a fellow, who is in the game because he likes it and is ambitious for success by fair methods. If he puts over the exciting jab on the fair form of Thomas Burns, there will be few tears shed and Tommy may retire into oblivion.

GIANTS WIN SLOW GAME
Sox Drop a Twelve Inning Exhibition to Houghton.
Game Not as Fast as Score Would Indicate.

Houghton defeated Duluth yesterday afternoon at Athletic park in the first game of the series, the contest going twelve innings to a 2 to 1 score.

The bare statement would lead one to infer that the game was one of the most exciting of the year. Ferish thought. It was one of the most tedious exhibitions ever seen on the field. For two hours and fifty minutes the men worked in a cloud of dust. The usual life and snap and ginger, which characterizes the work of both teams, was lacking from their play, and the only object the spectators had in remaining was to learn the ultimate outcome.

The game was good in its way. There were a few good fielding stunts and tense situations came up, but there seemed to be something lacking. Both Tredway and Miller pitched great ball, as far as holding the hits down and crawling out of holes is concerned. Miller allowed the Sox but five stringy singles in the twelve innings and Tredway gave the Giants but seven. Both were terribly wild. Each passed five men and Miller hit two, Tredway falling one behind in that respect.

The Giants started the scoring in the fourth inning. Meyers drew a

WIELDERS OF RACQUET
Good Weather is Boon to Tennis Players of City.
Eudion and Oneota Clubs Were Active During Past Week.

The past week has been one of joy for the devotees of our door sports, as they were given the first real summer weather of the season. Probably none took more advantage of the favorable climatic conditions than the tennis players. Nearly all spring, the weather has been paralytically unfavorable for tennis, but that of the past week was just right for the wielders of the racquet and on every court in the city, private and club, the players held full sway.

At the Endion club, nothing has yet been done in the way of drawings. The members are contenting themselves with practice matches for the purpose of getting their hands in, and the regular tournaments will probably not start for a week or ten days yet. There promises to be some interesting contests on the club courts this year. A number of the former stars have been out during the past week and their early season form marks them as factors to be counted upon when the club plays begin. Some of the new members are also showing good form, and they promise to give the veterans a good run for the honors this year.

The first play on the courts of the Oneota Tennis club at Portlath avenue west and Fourth street was held during

SIMPSON WINS GOLF HONORS
Fred McLeod and Willie Anderson Close Behind Leader.

Hinsdale, Ill., June 29.—Robert Simpson of the Omaha Country club won the Western open golf championship yesterday with a total of 97 strokes for the seventy-two holes play. Tied for eight place Thursday as the result of some bad play during the morning, Simpson yesterday played two unbeatable rounds, taking the finish over Fred McLeod of Midlothian and Willie Anderson of Onwentsia, former title holder, between whom it was thought the championship honors laid.

McLeod led after yesterday morning's play by a narrow margin, but in the afternoon fell down badly on his game. His play at the fifth hole, where he drove into the swamp among some trees and had to play back, especially disastrous. Anderson played consistent golf, as his rounds of 77 and 78 for yesterday show, but this was not good enough. In addition to winning the championship, Simpson won a special prize of $50 for the lowest score for a single round. Simpson and McLeod were tied for this, Simpson winning the playoff.

Simpson learned the game at Carnoustie, Scotland, and has been prominent in Western golf for several years. Warren K. Wood, the Homewood amateur, continued his good work yesterday and finished in a tie for fourth place with a total of 815.

Another amateur, Kenneth Edwards of Midlothian, tied for tenth place with a total of 92.

WISCONSIN WON A VICTORY.

It Spills the Game.
legle to it. The spit ball, besides being a handicap on the arm of the pitcher using it, is a disgusting thing. Nobody likes to see a pitcher slobbering over the sphere every time it reaches his hands and then send it through the air with the moisture dripping from it. It spoils the game by causing errors, when it is hit, for few pitchers will throw a ball accurately.

Kaiser, the Calumet pitcher, used the spit ball almost every day in the recent series and slobbered over the ball, while the umpire tried to keep the game moving. It makes for listless ball and poor exhibitions and any rule which would abolish it from the repertoire of twirlers would be welcomed by the fans.

SOME NOVEL FEATURES
A "Water Circus" is Planned by Boat Club Members.
"Shark Fishing" and "Rough Riding" Are on the Program.

The Water Circus is what the boat club calls the entertainment which will be provided for the amusement of its members and their friends next Saturday afternoon and some decidedly novel features will be introduced. Last year the log burning made a big hit with the spectators, but the members of the committee in charge this year have a new one, which they call "shark fishing." It is imported from the East and is said to be one of the most amusing and exciting of water sports. A horse is fitted on the shoulders of a swimmer, and an effort made to reel him in to the boat. An expert swimmer can put up a very interesting battle for a few minutes.

Those who will take part in this sport are S. D. Glass and G. H. Jones.

EDDIE BALD WINS EASILY.
Chicago Boy Too Much for Charley Neary.

Milwaukee, June 29.—Packy McFarland, the young lightweight from Chicago, defeated Charley Neary of Milwaukee in a ten-round bout before the Essex Athletic club last night. The decision was received with cheers. McFarland had the better of the Milwaukee boy in nearly every round. He used a left jab and was able to land it well. Occasionally he whipped in a right to the head and a few stiff up-kicks. Neary worked on his opponent's body most of the time. When he tried his famous swings for the head Packy wouldn't there. Neary got in considerable body punishment in the clinches, but to offset that the Chicago boy landed four or five body beats. McFarland demonstrated that he is entitled to a sixth any of the top notch lightweights.

YACHTING HAS TAKEN A FIRMER HOLD THAN EVER THIS YEAR UPON THE AFFECTIONS OF THE LOVERS OF THE OUT OF DOORS IN DULUTH

TAKING IT EASY WITH THE WIND AFT.

The Duluth Yacht club, the home of Duluth's sailors, is booming. Duluth seems to be just coming into its own as a yachting town and interest in the art of small boat sailing bids fair to be at a fever heat before the season closes. Never before in the history of Duluth have both sexes taken such an lively interest in sailing this year than ever before, and a number of the members of the weaker sex have acquired a proficiency in handling the smaller rather than the larger craft which is quite remarkable. A number of races between vessels, captained by ladies, are being planned for the season and will be among the most interesting of the summer sports.

Yacht clubhouses and piers, and of the feet of sailing craft anchored about it. The pictures accompanying this were taken by a Herald photographer on the bay this week. They demonstrate more clearly than words the interest which the fair sex is taking in yachting this season, even at this early stage. Though they are loth to admit that this is the cause, the young men of the city have taken a much more real interest in the sport since goodly numbers of the city's young ladies interested themselves in it, and when a sport like sailing gets hold of a town, there is no telling where it will stop.

WILL GO TO VIRGINIA

Fittwell Ball Team Will Play in Range Town.

Manager of the Kelley Team Cannot Secure Games.

The big game among the Duluth amateur teams tomorrow is that to be played by the Fittwells at Virginia, the Duluth team to meet the fast independent team of the range town. The Fittwells have a series of victories to their credit, and they are conceded to be one of the best independent clubs in the Northwest. Virginia has been spending money to secure players and the backers of the team think they have just about the best in Northern Minnesota.

Next Thursday, July 4, the Fittwells will go to Cloquet for two games. They should be beautiful exhibitions, as the last game between the two teams went 12 innings to a 1 to 0 score in favor of Cloquet. Both the Fittwells and the range club have strengthened since the game was played, and the Cloquet people will be given baseball of the best sort.

Manager Clyde Ziegler of the Kelley Hardware team is sore, mentally and bodily, and his voice is well nigh worn out under the strain of telephoning. All week long he has been walking, and writing, and talking, in the hope of securing some club willing to play his crowd of world-beaters, but failure attended his efforts.

"We would certainly like to play a few games," he told a sporting scribbler this morning. "They all seem to be dodging us. I'll admit that we have about as good a club as there is in Northern Minnesota and anybody who plays us is likely to take a drubbing, but that is no reason why some of those people shouldn't pick up courage enough to play us."

"If we don't play a game for the remainder of the season, we'll claim the championship of the Northwest in independent ball. We had a game all arranged with Virginia for a couple of weeks ago and they backed down on us. We had made arrangements to go to Coleraine tomorrow and they backed down. We had had several other games booked, only to be turned down at the last minute. If any of those managers think the Kelley club isn't as strong as their teams, let them say so, and we will play. The boys will be going stale for want of games soon, unless some of those people take courage and agree to play."

Two games are scheduled for the Duluth City league tomorrow. The Oak Hills will meet the Larsons at Thirty-second avenue west and Superior street, and the Millers and Columbus will play at Thirtieth avenue east and London road. The teams of the league are putting up good ball now. The teams scratched for tomorrow are well matched and they should put up a good game.

RACES AT YACHT CLUB

First Event in Pennant Series to be Pulled Off.

Four Races Have Been Arranged for Next Thursday.

The racing season of the Duluth Yacht club will open this afternoon, when the first race will be held. Eleven 25-foot boats are entered for the event, which should be a pretty one. The course has been slightly changed, the buoy at the dice being brought in closer to shore to make the leg about a half mile shorter, and the buoy formerly stationed at the Interstate bridge, being moved to a point near the Hanna coal dock.

A program of races has been arranged for July 4. It includes an event each for 25-foot, 30-foot, 35-foot, and 45-foot boats. The Young America and Betty will probably be the only boats to start in the 25-foot event, five in the 30-foot and two in the 35-foot. The yachts to start this afternoon, and their owners, are as follows:

BURNS AT OAKLAND.

Interest in Fight at San Francisco Next Week Increasing.

San Francisco, June 28.—Interest in the Squires-Burns heavyweight contest for the world's championship, is increasing. Tommy Burns arrived in Oakland yesterday and boxed six lively rounds with his sparring partner. He will work in public up to two days before the fight.

Nearly every Queensberry enthusiast in town has visited Squires and the consensus of opinion is that the fighter from Australia has not been overrated. The fighters are to enter the ring at Colma at 1:40 p. m. July 4, and if either is not ready to answer the sound of the gong at exactly 2 p. m. he will forfeit $500.

JUDGE ROSE DISCOVERED.

Washington Herald: To a happy speech in the presence of Theodore Roosevelt Judge U. M. Rose of Little Rock, Ark., owes the signal honor of being selected as one of the United States delegates to the World Peace now assembled for the second time at The Hague. The occasion was a luncheon given to the president at Little Rock when the president made his last visit to the Southwest in 1906. Judge Rose, though one of the most distinguished lawyers in the United States, had never met the president until the occasion of the brief address by Judge Rose at the luncheon Mr. Roosevelt, turned to his seat mates and declared: "That man is one of the ablest men in the country. I want to know him better, and I want you to know him better. He is nearly 80 years old and has been president of the National Bar association, but never an office-seeker. For many years he was on the highest bench of his state, but he frequently declined public office. When the time came to select the delegates to The

EARTHQUAKE UNDER SEA.

Far below the surface of the sea the earthquakes make as much commotion as on terra firma. The latest volcanic eruption of Vesuvius was observed with respect to its effects in the Gulf of Naples by Dr. Salvatore Lo Biondo. The day before the eruption, says the Chicago Tribune, not a sardine was to be caught in the neighborhood, although it was the height of the sardine season, for by some sixth sense the fish seemed to know of the impending disaster.

The spawning of fishes was retarded; oysters, clams and their kin were killed and there was great mortality among other types. Fishes that frequent deep waters were somewhat protected from conditions prevailing at the surface and escaped death, but evidently they were thrown into a panic that caused them to leave their natural hunting grounds, for men fishing from small boats caught species which never had been brought up before except by a special deep water trawl.

The minute plants and animals comprising plankton, which form the main food supply of many of the marine animals, were largely destroyed to a depth of ten fathoms, and as a consequence the scarcity of the food caused the death of the fish to such an extent that in Sardinia the fishing industry practically was ruined.

One of the most curious effects of the shower of cinders was to cause certain animals to throw off all appearances in the endeavor to protect themselves. The lobster is one of the familiar animals that adopts the philosophical plan of giving up much to save more, and when caught will automatically detach a claw and leave it in the hands of its captor in order to escape with the rest of its corporeal entity.

The serpent shark adopts the same policy in time of danger, and as it is occasionally provided with arms, its chances of escape by autonomy are correspondingly increased. When the shower of cinders descended into their world the animals accustomed to this mode of defense responded to the disturbance in the usual way, by throwing off their appendages, repeating the process as the irritation continued until they were completely dismembered.

It takes a man of very sanguine temperament to persuade himself that he is fortunate because his wife does not read the ads, and is, thus, not a "hargan-hunter."

AN OLD MAJOR LEAGUER

BILLY ALVORD.

W. C. Alvord, known to a good many old time fans as "Billy" Alvord, who played third base for two seasons, from Des Moines, he went to Kansas City in the American association and then back to Toledo in the same organization.

Cleveland in the National league secured him in 1896 and after one season there, he went to Washington in the National league for one season. He managed and played third base for the St. Paul team of the American association in 1892 and was with Providence in the Eastern league the following season, which was his last in professional baseball.

Since leaving the diamond, he has been on the road, but now expects to settle down in Duluth. He has met a good many old friends in the Zenith City and his rich fund of baseball stories makes him a favorite with all who meet him.

Master Fred and Funny Skyrocket Visit the Moon

By William Wallace, Jr.

Master Fred was a most patriotic little chap, especially on the glorious Fourth. Early on the morning of the Fourth of July he sallied out to celebrate. His papa gave him fifty cents with which to buy the necessary ammunition used on such an occasion. Fred supplied himself with one huge sky-rocket, a Roman candle and several pocketfuls of firecrackers. Then he proceeded to the picnic grounds, where a right royal celebration was to be held by all the village folk, young and old, little and big.

After reaching the picnic grounds Fred fell in with several of his young comrades who had preceded him there. They began celebrating in the most expressive manner by shooting off whole bunches of firecrackers at a time. This may have seemed rather extravagant behavior; but Fred said, "What does a little noise amount to, anyway? It's a big blow-out a feller wants; and if it takes all our ammunition at once, why let 'er go while it makes everyone sit up an' take notice; while if we just let off one little cracker at a time—an' keep it goin' all day—no body pays any attention to it."

"You're right, kid," admitted Sammy, Fred's chum. And so it came about that pretty soon all the firecrackers of that crowd were used up and only the "big gun" left for the final "wind-up."
"Now it's time to let off the Roman candles," said Fred the self-appointed master of ceremonies.
"Yep, the Roman candles," cried Sammy and all the other little chaps together. "The Roman candles next!"
"Say, fellers," said Fred, meditatively, "I've just recollected that all such things as Roman candles and skyrockets should be sent off at night. Then they show off finer'n silk."

"Sure," acquiesced Sammy. "We'll save 'em till night. Then we'll fire 'em off in a bunch, an' the noise will sound like the cannon did at the battle of—"
"For Bull Run," supplied Jim, a freckle-faced boy of ten who was considered the "crack" historian of his grade.
"Yep, of Bull Run," said Sammy. "That was the battle what decided our—our—liberty, wasn't it?"
Here all the boys maintained a discreet silence. Freddie excepted. He shook his head doubtfully and said: "Well, where did Buller Hill come in? I thought it had something to do with—the war."

"Sure, it did," admitted Sammy. "All the battles did. But we'll have to give it up till next fall when we'll find it all out in our history class. But now, as it is the glorious Fourth there's no time to be wasted in talkin' battles an' war. We're celebratin', we are."
"Well, I think it best to wait till dark an' set off the big guns," said Jim, the freckle-faced historian. "Night makes things look so big an' bright an' scary."
So it was decided by the boys to wait till nightfall to make a display of their Roman candles and skyrockets. The rest of the day was spent in wandering about the woods, back frequently to the picnic grounds for lemonade, (that was in a barrel free for all) and to beg cakes and sandwiches from their mothers.

After many hours spent in strenuous play the little band of boys became tired out from so much "celebrating," and finding a cool spot near the river's edge decided to rest in the shade and tell stories till the sun should set.
But one by one they fell asleep, overcome by the quiet of the woods and the song of the swifly-flying river. After a little nap, however, Fred awoke to see all his companions sleeping as soundly as though they were in their beds. A lively thought possessed him. Would it not be great fun to fire off a skyrocket and frighten them all out of their shirts? Ah! That was just what he would do. Gently taking a skyrocket from the bunch of "big guns" laid at hand Fred stepped a safe distance from his slumbering comrades and prepared to touch a match to his "business end." But before doing this he looked about for some place to rest the stick before lighting the fuse. Seeing no spot that seemed satisfactory he suddenly decided to hold it in his hand. Then he lighted the match, touched it to the fuse, and the skyrocket zoomed away into the sky-rocket with Fred holding to the end of the long, strong stick. Up, up through the trees into the clouds they went, the skyrocket emitting first a sweet and cool, and then a long, low, low hum. Then Fred became conscious that he was going away from the globe on which he lived; and had it not been for the fact that he knew death would be his reward should he let go and fall back to earth, he certainly would have let go the stick that was taking him beyond the clouds to some strange world.

The picnic grounds were fast disappearing, and Fred's heart ached as he thought of his dear parents' consternation on evening they should begin searching for him. Then the rocket would be sounded and everyone would join in the search for the missing Fred, who would be soaring through the heavens at the end of a skyrocket stick.
After a while Fred became drowsy and decided to take a nap. But before so he saw that he had a good hold on the stick. Then closing his eyes he slept for a long, long time. When at last he awoke he was going through the milky way. How bright the tiny stars were when one was in their midst. And strange to say, Fred did not feel the least bit tired. He was taken along on the air like a bird that did not have to exert its wings. Once he looked back at the earth, he could still catch a view of the earth; but only the stars surrounded him. Pretty soon he felt that they—be and the skyrocket—were approaching some place of destination—a place that would come in the way of their flying further into the sky. Looking up he saw this was true. There overhead hung a great planet whose surface looked much like the dear old earth he had just left. Or had he just left it? Indeed, he seemed to have slept for a few months, during that long unconscious spell. Maybe it was now September or October! Oh, how terrible to contemplate the anxiety and suspense of his dear parents!

But Fred's attention was called to the fact that he was being drawn very rapidly to the planet just above him. Then of a sudden he was whirled over and over like a ball in the air, his feet remaining towards the planet when the whirling process stopped. Fred drew a breath of relief. He knew that he was to land right end up. He had felt a bit of fear a few moments before, thinking he was to land on his head.

And then there was a strange sensation. Fred was standing on ground once more, his head dominating fearfully from the long flight through space. He looked all about him for some house, but nowhere was there a sign of life. "Ah, this is the moon," Fred said to himself. "Teacher has told us how it is a dead planet without any water or atmosphere. But how do I breathe so nicely if there is nothing to breathe? Pah! I wonder if Teacher don't know quite so much about the moon as she pretends to. Anyway, I'll look about for something to eat and drink."

"Come this way, then," said a voice that sounded so much like a squeak that Fred had to laugh. Turning he saw that the skyrocket had become animated with life and was jumping about in a very jolly manner.
"Well, Funny Stick," smiled Fred, "so you've come to life, have you? Gee, I'm glad of that for I was getting awfully lonesome. I was. But did you say you can take me to some place where we'll find something to drink an' eat?"
"Follow," was the stick's reply. Then he danced off over the moon's surface like a dancing master giving a lesson. Fred followed in the same lively way, laughing at the rate of his progress. Pretty soon they came to a green grove that appeared in the distance. "Inside that grove dwells the Man of the Moon," explained "Funny Stick," as Fred called the skyrocket that now appeared possessed of human intelligence. "We'll tap at his gate and ask for some refreshment."

In response to "Funny Stick's" tap on the gate a loud voice roared from a low-er bower: "Who's there and what's wanted?"
"It's Master Fred and Funny Skyrocket from your neighbor, Mistress Earth," informed "Funny Stick." Immediately the gate was opened by a nymph dressed in rosebuds and leaves. "This way," said the nymph, leading the strange visitors into the bower. Inside Fred looked about for the Man in the Moon, but he did not at first see him. Then gradually he dawned upon his vision, a being the color of the leaves and blossoms about him. He was a giant in stature and weight. A most noble brow shadowed deep purple eyes. Hair like soft vines fell over rose-tinted cheeks.

"Ah, how did you reach my world?" asked the Man of the Moon. "For centuries uncountable men of the Earth have been studying my planet without finding out very much about me. Well, and so it takes a boy and a skyrocket to shoot themselves to a place that can't be reached by man's genius. Ah, ha! You are a clever little party, and you stay here forever." And hereupon he reached out a long, sinewy arm that resembled the branch of a gnarled oak tree, with fingers all white, and bellowed like a wild grape vine. Fred felt that once he was in the clutch of that giant arm and hand there would be no more hope for his return to earth. With a bound he was out of the bower, screaming to the stars to deliver him. "Come, Funny, come! For dear life come!"

"Say, kid, what you yellin' 'bout?" asked the voice of Sammy, who had followed Fred, rubbing his eyes and panting from his run from the Man of the Moon, looked about him in a dazed way. "Gee, when did I get back?" he asked, raising his feet and looking about him. "And where is Funny Stick?"
"Say, wake up there," cried several of Fred's comrades, who were sitting on the grass and rubbing sleep from their eyes. "Why, the sun is down an' soon it'll be time to shoot the skyrockets and set off the Roman candles," declared Jim. "Come, fellers, get a move on you. The idea of sleepin' on the glorious Fourth when we ort to be celebratin'!"

Slowly Fred got to his feet and began to count the skyrockets. Yes, they were all there. And so it had been dream after all! "Golly-whee!" whispered Fred. "That's the greatest Fourth of July trip I ever took in my life. They may all say what they please—but as sure as I'm Fred Brown I went to that place hanging to the end of a stick. But I'm most powerful glad to be back on earth again." Then turning to his comrades he said: "Come on, fellers, lets be movin' towards the picnic grounds. Goin' and comin' from the moon gives a feller an appetite. I want a piece of layer cake an' a fried chicken leg. My, but it's late. An' soon it will be time to shoot off the fireworks."

NONSENSE RHYME
There was a small boy lived in town
Who wore a confused, ugly frown;
For his teacher had said;
(As she shook her wise head)
"Come, tell me, quick what is a noun?"

Beheaded Word Puzzle.
The top picture represents what the boy is doing. The lower picture what he got by cutting two much Fourth of July cheer and the middle picture what he took to get well. The last three letters of each word are the same. Can you guess them?

Tommy Tinker.

Tommy Tinker was a thinker,
Thinking thoughts, you see;
Tommy was an ordinary
Boy like you or me.

When at last he awoke he was going through the milky way.

On the Glorious Fourth

With many firecrackers in his hand;
Some matches in his pocket;
A "Hip, hip, hurrah!" on his tongue;
And one immense skyrocket.

This little Billy wandered forth
Most joyously to try
To celebrate in the right way
The Glorious Fourth of July.

He fell in line behind the band
That played "Red, White, and Blue";
He sang to help the noise along,
Though the words he never knew.

Little "Towhead" crept, tip-toe, into
The library after breakfast, closed and locked the door and sat him down in front of the writing desk. His freckled face—that was stained about the mouth and ears with egg and jam—wore a happy and patriotic smile.

"Now for main essay on the Glorious Fourth," he said, dipping pen in ink and beginning to write with painstaking care.
The following is the result of half an hour's energetic work:

"Meay, many hundreds of Years ago
George Washington started a War. It

Amerikens to be ruled by a Furin King.
We will take the Reins of government in 2 our Owa Hands, said George. All this happened on the Fourth of July, and thats why all of us still Seilbrat the

a Man as Shurlock homes or any Detective what ever drue the breath of Life.
He walted three hund 2 his boot tops without ever Grumbling about it. He could manage a whole Knanon by his self, and was never Known 2 tell a the Glorious Fourth we must all Shoot

Then to the Celebration Grounds
He marched with gallant tread;
And listened while a Wondrous Man
"The Declaration" read.

Then came the picnic dinner
Spread 'neath a great oak tree;
And little Billy ate his fill
While the band played "Liberty."

And all the rest the day was spent
In making fun and noise;
Shooting lots of firecrackers off
With all the girls and boys.

And when at eve he wandered home,
As tired as he could be,
He said, "I love the Glorious Fourth,
'Tis a day what jest suits me."
MAUD WALKER.

Two Little Calves' Revenge.

By MAUD WALKER.

There were two little calves in the meadow. One was the son of old Brindle and the other was the daughter of White-face. Now, thinking that you may not know who Old Brindle and White-face were I shall tell you: they were two very fine milk cows belonging to farmer
Day. And farmer Day allowed these two fine cows to roam about the meadow with their dear little calves, Rosebud and Red-pepper. Funny names for calves, were they not? But farmer Day's children, Jack and Lulu, named them, and as Lulu loved her cow called old White-face's daughter calf "Rosebud," and as Jack loved her cow and was a little mischievous old Brindle's boy called "Red-pepper."

Well, Jack and Lulu were the most mischievous children you could find in seven states; not naughty children, understand, but just too full of fun and mischief to be kept quiet and proper for five minutes together, except when they were asleep.

One day while gathering daisies in the meadow, with which to adorn their mother's dining table, they stopped work to play with Rosebud and Red-pepper awhile. Now, calves don't like playing with children. They are fond of frolick-ing about with each other, but they don't want any two-legged playmates. They are not good at hide and seek, nor can they toss and catch ball. In fact, calves love to play with calves only. But Jack and Lulu never thought of that and they began teasing Rosebud and Red-pepper in the meadow instead of picking daisies as they should have done. At first Rose-bud and Red-pepper would scamp' out of the children's way, to be quickly overtaken by their tormentors. Seeing that to escape Jack and Lulu was impossible, and that their dear old mamma did not come to their rescue, the poor little calves took their stand in clover-knee-deep and did not try to resist the mischievous trunks of Jack and Lulu.

"We'll get on our backs and make them stir themselves," suggested Jack.
His proposition suited Lulu to a T, and she agreed to rise Rosebud if Jack would ride Red-pepper. So they climbed upon the backs of the unsuspecting Rosebud and Red-pepper. After they were successfully mounted they began to dig their hard hoofs into the calves' sides to make them move about in this they were successful, for no calf with any feeling could stand still while his sides were undergoing such punishment. So about the meadow trotted Rosebud and Red-pepper, Jack and Lulu perched laughing on their poor little backs.

Finding it great sport to ride calf-back Jack and Lulu came to the meadow every day to repeat the performance. The calves began to feel that something must be done to prevent the continuation of this practice, or they—Rosebud and Red-pepper—would surely turn into horses.

One evening after their mamma, old Brindle and White-face, had been driven to the cow lot for milking, Rosebud and Red-pepper had a confidential chat. Red-pepper began with:

"I don't know how you feel in this matter of being ridden, but I'm about on the point of rebelling against it. We are not horses, nor are we mules. But if this keeps up we'll probably become both."

Rosebud, nibbling a bit of clover. "And if you'll take a strenuous stand against these children getting on our backs I'll join you, shoulder to shoulder. I'm just a plain little calf, but I have my rights in this world. And one of those rights is to prevent children from causing me to turn into a horse or a mule. Bah, how I hate the sight of a mule!" And little Rosebud carried up her funny snub nose at thought of the animal she so detested.

"Well, suppose we put a stop to this ridin' on our backs tomorrow," said Red-pepper. "The way to do it is to play we have become wild bulls, and charge the boy and girl the minute they come into the meadow. We must below just like that old bull whenever any one goes near the pasture where he is kept.
You have seen and heard him, haven't you?"

"Goodness, I guess yes," answered Rose-bud, shivering to the point of her little wavy tail. "Ugh, how he frightens me whenever I see him! He is a real terror.
Yes, we'll play—or pretend, rather—that we've become wild bulls, and the way we'll charge those two children will make even the birds in the trees laugh at the sight. And Rosebud smiled in merry anticipation.

"But on second thought, wouldn't it be a greater joke to let the children mount us first? Then, once they are on our

Two Little Calves' Revenge.

backs, we'll dash round the meadow like wildfire, toss our heads—I was going to say horns, but we haven't got any horns, and after having given them all the ride they can stand for, we'll toss them over our heads into the grass, and bellow like the old bull over in the big pasture." So spoke Red-pepper.

"Yes, cousin, that is the better plan.
And now we must pledge ourselves to carry it out," said Rosebud.

"I'll stand by our decision as I would stand for life and liberty," solemnly promised Red-pepper.

"I'll admit we didn't ride very gracefully; but it would have looked about as funny to an outsider to see you all running pell-mell to the gate to get outside the fence, so it would."

And as the little party went homeward, some flushing and ashamed, while others laughed over the joke, Rosebud and Red-pepper, standing in the pond of water up to their round little bellies, laughed till their very tails trembled and caused a commoner to come later in the day, and when Red-pepper got to scamp'ing about in the clover she shook the boy and girl like a top. "Better save your strength till it is needed, cousin."

And the next night, for along about two o'clock in the afternoon there were seen several children approaching the meadow gate, Jack and Lulu leading. "Ala, what did I tell you?" whispered Rosebud.
"You see, here they come."

"Yes, and others with them, too," said Red-pepper. "It is plain that they intend to have their many friends enjoy a ride at our expense. But how the deuce they got over the fence, I can hardly wait till I get one of them on my back! Won't I enjoy it? Well, wait a me!"

"I'll be too busy myself, cousin," said
Rosebud, laughing softly under her breath.
"But if you have time to look at anything going on about you just turn your eyes in my direction."

They said no more, for the hand of little folks had come into the meadow and were scamp'ing towards the calves.
"Say, Lulu and I will ride first," shouted Jack gaily, approaching Red-pepper who was standing very still, his fat head hanging listlessly. "Then, after we've each taken a turn, Oh, they are the gentlest calves you ever saw, and they don't mind our being on their backs at all."

Then, watched eagerly by their companions, Jack and Lulu climbed on the backs of the two calves. But to their surprise, as soon as they were barely seated, the calves began to run and kick and bellow at such a rate that they became terribly frightened. In vain they tried to whisper to Rosebud when Red-pepper; the calves were about the meadow like wild. Lulu's hat flew off and she began to call for help in a desperate way, while Jack was clinging to Red-pepper's neck for dear life, too much shaken up to speak. At last, just as both children were on the point of falling off Rosebud and Red-pepper raised their hind legs and tossed their burdens over their heads into the clover. Then with bellowing that sent terror to the children's hearts, they began to paw the earth wildly, sinking their little heads like a wild bull on the rampage.
You may better believe Jack and Lulu got to their feet instantly and ran with all their might towards the gate where they saw their young friends waiting preparatory to climbing over it into safety.
